EX-PRESIDENTS AND WIDOWS OBTAIN PRESIDENTS GET $25,000 ANNUAL PENSION

CARNEGIE CORPORATION PROVIDES FUND AT SECOND ANNUAL MEETING.

PRESERVE RANK IDEA

TO ENABLE FORMER EXECUTIVES TO CONTINUE WORK.

REMARRYING PROVISION MADE

Presentation of Sum to Be Promptly Offered Without Requiring Application Until Nation Legislates.

New York, Nov. 21.—Future ex-presidents of the United States are to be pensioned in the sum of $25,000 each annually, by action of the Carnegie corporation of New York today.

The grant is provided with the idea of enabling former executives of the nation to devote knowledge gained in public affairs to the public good, free from pecuniary care.

A similar amount is to be paid widows of ex-presidents as long as they remain unmarried.

The pensions are to be promptly offered the ex-presidents or their widows, so that no application will be required from them. Payment is to be continued so long as the recipients remain unmarried.

The announcement followed the second annual meeting of the Carnegie corporation, held at the residence of Andrew Carnegie here.

Five of the eight trustees are the heads of the five institutions which Mr. Carnegie has founded—the Carnegie endowment for international peace, Ethel Ross, president, the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching, Henry S. Pritchett, president, the Carnegie institution of Washington, Robert A. Woodward, president, Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, "Pittsburgh Courier," Taylor, president, Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh, Wm. M. Frew, president.

The successors of the five men become ex-officio trustees of the Carnegie Corporation of New York. In addition there are three life trustees, Andrew Carnegie, Robert A. Franks and James Bertram. The trustees authorized this statement of the corporation aims:

"Embodiment of $125,000 in Securities. A total of $125,000 in securities has thus far been transferred to the corporation, which will carry on the various works in which Mr. Carnegie has been engaged, and such others, as he may from time to time think it advisable to establish. Mr. Carnegie believes he has taken the surest means of securing for the future a body of the best possible trustees.

The heads of the institutions named must inevitably be men of high moral and intellectual standing. They are empowered by a two-thirds vote to modify or discontinue any branch of the service which in their judgment, has become inadvisable or unnecessary, or if better use can be made of the funds and also to adopt from time to time such work as by them may be deemed most desirable for the wants of the age; so that from age to age the fund may be expended upon the most profitable work, whether that be the promotion of new ideas or the development of those of the day."

In the meeting the trustees took up a number of matters but the principal item was the pension plan for ex-presidents of the United States and their widows. The official announcement follows:

Official Plan.

"Provision has been made through this corporation for a pension for each future ex-president and his widow, until married, of $25,000 per year, as long as these remain unmarried. These pensions will be promptly offered to the ex-presidents or their widows that no such application will be required of them.

Robert A. Franks, one of three life trustees of the Carnegie corporation of New York, is treasurer of the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching. Mr. Bertram is Mr. Carnegie's secretary.

Taft Makes No Comment.

Washington, Nov. 21.—When informed today of the action of the Carnegie corporation in providing pensions for future ex-presidents, President Taft said it was a very unexpected proposition he was requested to make no comment now.

In a speech before the Loftus Club in New York City last Saturday, the president hinted broadly that congress should provide for ex-presidents so that they need not lower the dignity of the position they held when they re-entered private life.

BILL FOR DIRECT VOTE.

Senator Works to Introduce Measure at Next Congress.

Washington, Nov. 21.—Senator Works of California will introduce a resolution when congress reconvenes for the amendment of the constitution providing for the election of president and vice president by direct vote of the people.

The senator will urge that in addition to its directness it would avoid the possibility of a presidential election by the house of representatives.

GOMPERS GETS PRAISE

FEDERATION LEADER COMPLIMENTED FOR NON-POLITICAL POLICY PURSUED.

Socialist Member Alone Opposes Endorsement—Several Conflicts Expected Between Two Wings.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 21.—The American federation of labor in convention commended the non-political policy pursued by President Gompers and other officials of the federation.

Delegates Max Hayes, a socialist member from the radical wing, opposed the endorsement on the ground that in the last campaign President Gompers had supported the democratic candidate for president and that in quoting plans favorable to labor from various political platforms he had made no quotations from the socialist platform.

At the afternoon session of the federation the question of adding the Chicago pressmen who are on strike came up. The committee on adjustment favored sending representatives of the executive council of the federation to Chicago to attempt adjustment of the difficulty and the committee's report was adopted.

A few days ago the convention refused to seat the delegates of the international association of steam and engine firemen, when the committee on adjustment brought in its report on the United Mine Workers' resolution, providing for the election of federation officers by a referendum vote of the 2,600,000 members.

EDITOR MAY TALK TO JURORS

Unusual Proceedings Expected at the Close of Textile Strikers' Case.

Salem, Mass., Nov. 21.—District Attorney Henry Attwell tomorrow will make the commonwealth's closing argument in the trial of Editor Giovannianni and Caruso for the Lopez murder in the Lawrence textile strike.

He will follow with Scott Peters, who closes on behalf of Giovannianni, unless Editor, who would like to say a few words to the jury, is permitted to do so. Such an unusual procedure is unlikely.

The probability of the case going to the jury tomorrow night is remote, as the charge to the jury may not be delivered until Saturday.

Attorney Peters for the defense, characterized these charges against Editor and Giovannianni as "the most flimsy and gaudy ever taken into court."

The case, Mr. Peters said, was a conspiracy on the part of mill owners to rob the strikers of their leaders.

"I don't say it came crookedly to the district attorney," said Mr. Peters, "but through a desire of repressing them, the mill owners tried to get rid of the strike leaders, hoping when they were in prison, the 25,000 poor working men, women and children would return to the mills again their slaves. That's the way this filthy creature, this constructive case was born."

POLICY HOLDERS SEEK RECEIVER

Persons Interested in Great Western Life Insurance Company Charge Discontinuation of Management.

Kansas City, Nov. 21.—Receivership for the Great Western Life Insurance company, which has headquarters here, was asked in the circuit court today by stockholders and policy holders of the company, who charged extravagance and dissipation in its management.

The application says a movement is under way to merge the company with the International Life Insurance company of St. Louis and to move the headquarters to that city, against the wishes of many stockholders. It is charged that G. W. Stevenson, president, has been extravagant, and that he has "raised his own salary beyond a justified amount."

The company has 7000 policy holders, including some in Oklahoma and Texas.

Dry Farming Congress Convened.

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 21.—The 1913 convention of the International Dry Farming Congress, which opened here today, is being held in Tulsa, according to a decision here today by the committee on location. Oklahoma City and Muskogee were contestants. This will be the first time that the congress has met in the middle west.

Mississippi River Commission On Trip

New Orleans, Nov. 21.—The members of the Mississippi river commission, aboard the government steamer Mississippi, arrived here today and were welcomed by city officials. The commission left St. Louis Nov. 17 on their semi-annual trip down the river.

Local levee board will submit their reports and recommendations, after which the commissioners will visit the jetties at the mouth of the river.

All of the names subscribed to the hotel bonus have not yet been tabulated, but several of the subscribers are added to the list heretofore published and it is stated that the net result of the work yesterday was $2970, but $1250 of that amount was not reported at the noon luncheon at the Y. M. C. A., the Central committee secured $250 from the Royal Coffee Company and $100 each from the Southern Traction Company and the Texas Light & Power Company during the afternoon. This brings the total amount raised so far to more than $15,000, and prospects are good.

Yesterday morning was fixed for the start of the whirlwind campaign. Ten teams had been appointed to make the house to house canvass, and they were to start at 9 a. m. The rain early morning and team members did not all believe it a propitious time in which to make a canvass, and some did not start out at all and others were late in starting. The teams which made the round, however, met with good success, notwithstanding the bad weather.

Team No. 1 did not canvass because several of the members were out of town, but Dr. J. J. Dean, captain, reported that he had pledged a personal subscription of $250, which would go to the credit of whatever amount his teams raised.

Team No. 2, T. A. Caulfield captain, worked only in the Amicable building during the forenoon, among salaried men, and reported $450.

Team No. 3 and No. 4 did not get out during the forenoon.

Team No. 5, E. W. Marshall captain, worked during the forenoon and secured the largest amount of the day, $1250. One of these subscriptions was for $100 by P. S. Ingraham and C. T. Brian, manager of the Auditorium, and with the subscription was the generous offer that at any time that he is deemed advisable to hold a mass meeting of the citizens to promote the hotel project, that the Auditorium is at the services of the commercial organizations, at no cost whatever. This generous offer was loudly applauded.

Team No. 6, Will Edmond captain, reported $100 for the day's work.

Team No. 7 did not work during the forenoon.

Team No. 8, Alex Sanger captain, reported $350 subscribed.

Team No. 9 did not work during the forenoon.

Team No. 10, John F. Wright captain, reported $200, the team being out but a short time in the rain. These reports were made at the luncheon at the Y. M. C. A. at noon. P. E. McLarty, president, the social dinner session being held after General Secretary Hankins of the Y. M. C. A., had said graciously of $11,050 which had been subscribed through the efforts of the Central committee, there would be a division between the teams of credit for it, share and share alike, and each team captain was instructed to take credit for $1105.

There was a great deal of enthusiasm at the luncheon. It was the sense of all present that the amount raised was very creditable, and that it will be a help in adding more subscriptions from day to day.

It was reported by some of the team workers that they found a generous reception on every hand; they stated that they were able to get subscriptions from the smaller merchants because of the fact that an increase of trade for every store in town is possible during the construction of the hotel, that from 100 to 500 men will be employed on the construction all the time, concrete workers, steel workers, etc., and that these people will all live here and spend their money here while they are so employed. Basing it on an actual expenditure of $350,000 or $400,000 for the construction, it means that a large part of that amount will be paid out for labor, and this will all be put into general circulation in this city every week through the pay roll of the contractor and sub-contractors. In this way

FISHERMAN ILLUSTRATES HOW HE REMOVED DROWNED WOMAN FROM WATER.

Prisoner's Attorneys Make Long Strides In Upsetting States Contention By Eye-Witnesses.

Goshen, N. Y., Nov. 21.—An attendant lay on the courthouse floor this afternoon at the trial of Burton W. Gibson for the murder of Mrs. Rosa Menachik Szabo, and with Judge, jury and counsel around him, re-enacted an alleged scene from the tragedy of July 16 in which Mrs. Szabo lost her life at Greenwood lake.

Thomas Garrison, a fisherman, witness for the defense, illustrated how he had taken the woman's body from the water. He showed that he had left the body outstretched, with the head pressed downward, the chin resting almost on the breast.

Through this the defense hopes to upset the state's contention that the organs of the dead woman's throat were forced out of position by strangulation. Medical experts are prepared to testify tomorrow that Garrison's treatment of the body were sufficient to have forced the tongue, palate and windpipe into the position in which the state claims they were found at the autopsy.

Garrison testified that he had seen Gibson and his companion in the boat and that they had seemed to jump out. He thought they were swimming and paid no further attention.

Harry Laux, an electrical engineer of New York, swore that Gibson and the woman did not struggle before the boat upset. They were standing up when Laux saw them and they were four feet or more apart. They jumped out, apparently, the man first, and were diving. This testimony contradicts John Minturn, state's witness, who said that Gibson seized his companion around the neck before they fell into the water.

Three men from the motor launch Torpedo, who rescued Gibson, swore he was exhausted when taken from the water.

"Don't mind me," he shouted while in the water, the witnesses testified. "Where is the lady? Do something for the lady."

John Minturn's testimony was attacked by Henry Heink, son of the accused, who swore Minturn told him that he was far away from the accident that he could not see what was going on.

Mrs. Gibson may take the stand tomorrow to testify that she knew of her husband's relations with Mrs. Szabo. The defense expects to complete its case during the afternoon and adjournment will be taken until Monday, when counsel will sum up.

BULGARIANS' REQUESTS MANY

Two Torpedo Boats, Property of Balkans, Reported Lost In Black Sea. Adrianople Commandant Praised.

Constantinople, Nov. 21.—The terms offered by the Balkan allies for the arrangement of an armistice are "unacceptable" to the Ottoman government.

Hazim Pasha, the Turkish commander in chief, has been instructed to continue military operations until more acceptable conditions are offered, but at the same time he is entrusted with the further negotiations.

The official announcement of the port's decision regarding the armistice is as follows:

"The Bulgarian premier has addressed to the Ottoman government a document containing conditions for an armistice which were communicated today to the council of ministers and were considered unacceptable."

"Consequently, in view of the fact that the commander in chief has been entrusted with negotiating conditions with plenipotentiaries of the belligerent states—if these are invested with the necessary powers—and also been directed to communicate the results of such negotiations to us, the commander in chief has been instructed to continue military operations, with the help of the Almighty, until reasonable and moderate conditions are proposed to us."

Demands Conjecture.

It is said that the Bulgarian conditions included a demand for the surrender of Adrianople and Scutari, the withdrawal of the Turkish fleet from the Black Sea, and the cessation of the dispatch of troops to Tchatalja and the building of fortifications.

General Shukri Pasha, military commandant of Adrianople, has received the title of "Ghazi," which means "victorious" in recognition of his splendid defense.

An official dispatch from the captain of the cruiser Hamidieh, which was attacked by Bulgarian torpedo boats in the Black Sea, this morning says he sank two of them and damaged the third so badly that it was forced to draw away.

"When at a distance of 2000 yards the third torpedo boat discharged two torpedoes, inflicting slight damage on us. We actually obliged her to withdraw out of range of our guns," the dispatch says.

Consuls Advise Janina Surrender.

Athens, Nov. 21.—The Athens newspapers print a statement that the Bulgarian officers at Serres, on the ground that they had been insulted by the Turkish populace, ordered the troops to fire with the result that 500 persons were killed or wounded.

At Janina the consuls have advised the governor to surrender to avoid unnecessary bloodshed.

Americans Aid Rescue Work.

Philadelphia, Nov. 21.—The Bulgarians, who have been in the city and have fast on the heels of the Turks that the soldiers will not have any time to do damage," declared Herbert Adams Gibbons, professor of political economy in Roberts College at Constantinople, in a letter received from him by Philadelphia relatives today.

"All of the women in our colony," continued the letter, "are busy with Red Cross work and do not want to leave Constantinople unless it is absolutely necessary."

Mr. Gibbons said Russian battle-ships were "hovering around the entrance to the Bosphorus above us."

Greeks Capture Florina.

Athens, Nov. 21.—Greeks have occupied the Turkish town of Florina, south of Monastir, and have cut off the rear guard of the Turkish army retreating from Monastir.

The Turkish soldiers who escaped around Monastir number about 30,000. Large quantities of ammunition and stores fell into the hands of the Greeks.

Compromise Hope Entertained.

London, Nov. 21.—It would seem that the Turkish officials have not abandoned hope that the powers will attempt a compromise, but Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, announced tonight that the powers had not gone so far as to arrange a general conference after the conclusion of the war. Their only agreement is to keep their hands off.

Yet the probability of the resumption of hostilities has started rumors from Vienna of Austrian and Russian mobilization and a naval demonstration by the triple alliance on the Albanian coast, if Serbia pushes on to the coveted seaport. The continued successful defense of the Tchatalja lines would undoubtedly strengthen Turkey's diplomatic position, but defeat, after prolonged fighting of her own choosing, would inflame the Bulgarians to make a triumphal progress into Constantinople.

Popular clamor in Sofia is demanding more strongly each day that the advance shall stop only at the Bosphorus.

Twenty-one Deaths and 24 Wounded In Determined Battle—Americans Give Aid to Injured.

El Paso, Nov. 21.—One hundred federal troops defending the Mexican port of Palomas on the New Mexico border, made a determined fight today against 300 rebels and only surrendered after two distinct engagements.

The rebels early in the day entered the town and a cessation of firing led to the belief on the American side that the port had fallen. But this afternoon it was learned that the federalists still held their position.

Brisk fighting continued two more hours this afternoon until the government troops, threatened again by hand grenades, surrendered again. Aside from one federal captain who fled, all the government troops were taken prisoners.

Major McDonald of the Thirteenth United States cavalry, sent word that both rebel and federal wounded would be cared for on the American side. The federalists lost seven killed and ten wounded, while the rebels lost four killed and wounded.

With the rebels under Gen. Inez Salazar now in command, opposite Columbus, only 73 miles to the east, federalists under Gen. Tracy Aubert still retain Juarez opposite El Paso.

SINGLE QUESTION OCCUPIES DAY

Cash Register Anti-trust Hearing Is Hindered by Arguments Regarding Evidence Admissibility.

Cincinnati, Nov. 21.—The first witness to testify in the case of John H. Patterson and twenty-nine other officials or ex-officials of the National Cash Register Company of Dayton, Ohio, charged with having violated the criminal section of the Sherman antitrust law, answered one question today and during the argument that followed court was adjourned until tomorrow.

The witness, Henry G. James, an automobile dealer of Detroit, testified that he was formerly agent for the Benninger Cash Register Company of Chicago, in its Cincinnati office, leaving to go into the employ of the National Cash Register Company.

The defense objected to further testimony from the witness on the ground that he could not give any testimony that concerned the National Cash Register Company after 1890. Arguments followed and before a ruling was made, the court adjourned. The morning session was taken up with statements of attorneys for both sides.

Attorney Cassatt, who represented Edgar Park, one of the defendants, indignantly stated to the court that Park had not been connected with the National Cash Register Company since 1907, and that the time limit for prosecution under the Sherman antitrust act had expired on Park. As this was not a motion, Park will be tried with the other twenty-nine defendants.

ACCIDENTS IN AIR KILL TWO MEN

Monoplane and Aeroplane Fatalities Occur During Trial Flights—Andre Frey Contestant at Chicago.

Rheims, Nov. 21.—Two aviators were killed today—Andre Frey, at Rheims, and Sub-Lieutenant Laurent at Etampes.

Frey finished in the international aviation race at Chicago last September. Today he was undergoing military training and had just finished a flight.

He stopped his engine at a height of about 800 feet and planned down to within 150 feet of the grounds when the right wing, and the monoplane crumpled and the machine dropped. Frey was badly crushed. The cause of the accident is a mystery.

Lieutenant Laurent and Sapper Chenu were making a flight near Etampes when a small biplane, the aeroplane and dashed it to the ground. Laurent was killed, but Chenu escaped with slight injuries.

With reference to the possible visit here of politicians, Mr. Wilson said he did not expect any one to call on him to discuss future appointments or policies. He would get a cold reception if he came.

CONE JOHNSON FINED

ATTORNEY'S PERSISTENCE IN REPEATING QUIZ COSTS $100.

CLASHES DELAY EVIDENCE

Court Threatens Penalties to Any Who Disregard Orders—Babies Are Barred From Courtroom.

Fort Worth, Nov. 21.—Prosecutors of John Beal Sneed for the murder of Capt. Al B. Boyce Sr., began a terrible attack today that, if successful, will destroy the claim of conspiracy set up by the defense.

So far the state has been successful in its objections, even to asking questions that, if answered as the defense claims they would be, would prove Captain Boyce a conspirator in the abduction of Sneed's wife by Al Boyce Jr., and would prove that Captain Boyce made vulgar and insulting remarks about Mrs. Sneed.

Cone Johnson, distinguished counsel for the defense, was fined $100 for contempt when he asked a question in the examination of a witness after Judge Swayne had forbidden him. The fine was paid immediately.

With the jury locked in its room most of the morning, lawyers arguing on the admissibility of the important evidence of the defense deadlocked the trial.

The defense demands testimony to prove that Captain Boyce received $50,000 or $60,000 for Al Boyce Jr. before the abduction of Mrs. Sneed, that Captain Boyce sent W. E. Farwell, assistant cashier of the Dalhart bank, to Fort Worth, Texas, to buy a baby, and that Captain Boyce made insulting remarks about Mrs. Sneed.

The state maintains that conspiracy evidence would involve Henry Boyce, son of Captain Boyce, and that the alleged insulting remarks about Mrs. Sneed were not communicated to Beal Sneed first hand, but were repeated twice before he heard them.

Farwell Recalled. Farwell was recalled to the stand this morning, but lawyers argued most of the time he sat in the witness chair and his testimony was brief and indefinite.

W. H. Fuqua, Amarillo banker, was called to the stand next, but the jury was not allowed to hear the alleged insulting remarks Captain Boyce made about Mrs. Sneed to Fuqua and communicated to Sneed by Ray Wheatley, the third witness called today.

NO CONTAGIOUS DISEASE HERE

So Report of City Physician Toomlin to the Board of Health Shows.

Not only is there no meningitis in Waco today, but there is not a single case of contagious disease, unless it has developed over night, this being part of the report submitted by City Physician Toomlin to the Health Board, the board that once directed that the people of the city be informed as to the facts.

The fact that the city is at this time singularly free from all contagious disease, of whatever nature, is considered remarkable by those conversant with conditions in towns of this size. That there is no meningitis is also a matter of satisfaction to the members of the health board.

Dr. Toomlin states that the city is in excellent shape to cope with meningitis, should it again begin to show cutthrotings here, but he does not think there is any danger along this line.

CLUB WOMEN URGE COMPULSORY EDUCATION IN A COMMITTEE REPORT.

MRS. PENNYBACKER'S GIFT

Golden Star is Presented to the National President—To Compile History of Texas Traditions.

Fort Worth, Nov. 21.—The Texas Federation of Women's clubs today, the day before final adjournment of its fifteenth annual convention, devoted all the morning session to consideration of the educational work and duties of the federation. A press session was held during the morning also, at which the best methods of forwarding the work of the club by publicity were discussed.

Two extra features of the morning program, a talk by Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, president of the general federation, and a talk by Dr. Rizzell, president of the North Texas Industrial college at Denton, caused a delay which resulted in the continuance of the morning session until nearly 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

Reports were received from the committee on education, library extension and history, and these three were discussed with great interest. Other reports received Thursday morning were from the committees on home and school clubs, literature, art, music and humane education.

In presenting the report of the education committee, Mrs. E. E. Bramlette of Austin deplored the double standard of morals and complained that the standard women set for men is not as high as the standard men set for women.

She outlined the work that the committee has deemed it necessary to attempt.

County Libraries Proposed.
A county library in each county, with branches in every post-office of the county, was recommended in the report of the library extension committee, presented by Mrs. S. Wiseman of McKinney.

Mrs. S. J. Wright of Paris, one of the ex-presidents of the state federation, presented the report of the history committee, and told of work that is being done on a book dealing with the history and traditions of the early days in Texas. The book will be issued by June 1, 1913, she said.

One of the features of the morning session was the presentation to Mrs. Pennybacker of a golden "Texas Star" by Mrs. C. W. Connery, representing the local board. Mrs. Pennybacker accepted the token with tear-dimmed eyes, and expressed her appreciation in a brief speech rendered more touching by her trembling voice.

The discussion of education was continued this afternoon. The first report by Mrs. Maggie K. Barry of Sherman on "Compulsory Education" was followed by an address on vocational training by Dr. Edgar Odell Lovett, president of the Rice Institute at Houston. A report of the kindergarten committee by Mrs. J. C. Saunders of Bonham was followed by addresses by two Fort Worth women, Mrs. J. P. Lyons and Mrs. John A. Rice.

Mrs. Lyons' subject was "Urgent Need of a State Industrial home for Girls," while Mrs. Rice discussed the Montessori system.

From 4:30 until 6 o'clock today the visitors were taken for an automobile ride, ending at the River Crest Country club, where tea was served.

Morning Session.
The invocation this morning was by Rev. William Caldwell. After the reading of the minutes, Mrs. E. E. Bramlette of Austin, began the report of the educational committee. There are four features to the problem, she said. They are compulsory education, the school as a social center, sex hygiene in the schools and loans and scholarships.

Compulsory education, she pointed out, is a most effective child labor law. She reported on work done by many of the clubs toward making the school a social center.

Discussing sex hygiene, she advised that the education of the children be done by work on and through the mothers. Race suicide, she said, would be advisable if mothers have to leave all the training of the children to other persons. She deplored the double moral standard.

Women Set Standard.
"Men set the standard for women, and it is the highest and best," she said. "Women set the standard for men, and we are sorry we cannot tell of it with equal pride."

Two recommendations were made—one urged compulsory school attendance, and the other suggested that the state schools be supported by a special tax, in order to remove their control from politics.

Mrs. Maggie K. Barry of Sherman, a member of the committee, made the explanation of the last recommendation. She said proper growth of the schools was impossible when the schools did not know whether they were going to receive enough money to continue in existence.

Home and School Report.
The report of the committee on home and school clubs was made by Mrs. A. B. Honeycutt of Cleburne.

It told of extension of the club work in the different districts. Nineteen home and school clubs have been organized in the year.

The report recommended that special attention be given to work in the rural districts.

President Rizzell of the College of Industrial Arts at Denton, was escorted to the platform by Miss Kate Friend of Waco, and made a brief talk. He said his institution really belongs to the club women of Texas. This year more than 400 girls have been enrolled, and he is making an effort to build up at Denton the greatest institution for higher education of girls in the United States, he said.

Denton School's Progress.
The institution now is crowded and more room is the most vital need. The legislature at its next session will be asked for $125,000 for a new dormitory, he explained, and the club women will be asked to give their aid.

The question of discipline there is almost unknown because of the cooperation between faculty and students, was announced.

Mrs. Pennybacker Speaks.
Mrs. Pennybacker asked Mrs. Pennybacker to address the convention. She took up the work that has been done

POSILAM CURES ALL ANNOYING SKIN TROUBLES

In using Posilam, you are using the most modern and most successful remedy ever devised for the quick eradication of all skin troubles. It is daily accomplishing astounding cures with almost incredible rapidity. Its pleasant, easy healing process, its intense antiseptic properties, make it invaluable in hospital and household.

Take any case of eczema, acne, itch, salt rheum, piles, scalp scale, etc., however stubborn, and Posilam will stop itching as soon as applied, bringing immediate relief and comfort. If any skin difficulty bothers you, try Posilam NOW and prove its merit.

POSILAM SOAP is the soap of soaps for daily use, for toilet and bath, as a means of improving color and texture of the skin and assuring its continued health. It derives its rare beneficial effects from medication with Posilam. The Old Corner Drug Co. and all druggists sell Posilam (price 50 cents) and Posilam Soap (price 25 cents). For free samples write to the Emergency Laboratories, 31 West 25th St., New York City.

In the General Federation since she took office as president.

She urged the women to learn to differ amicably.

Mrs. Pennybacker told of her temptation to take good things for Texas, and her resistance. She told of the selection of Chicago as the place for the next biennial convention.

She asked help in arranging the program and asked also a good representation from Texas.

She told of the work to collect a General Federation endowment fund, the principal of which is not to be touched. She complimented Texas on being one of the first four states to pledge her part and raise it. For the endowment $21,000 in cash has been collected, and what is pledged brings the total to about $40,000, of which $2,000 has been raised in Texas.

She recommended as an aid to successful meetings of the general federation a conference of the chairmen of the various committees, to plan and prevent repetition and conflict in the program.

Study Politics.
She advocated the study of politics so that in case the ballot comes to women, it may be used intelligently, or in case it does not come, the women may be able to lead the family conversation in the right lines.

After Mrs. Pennybacker sat down, Mrs. C. W. Connery, on behalf of the local board, presented her with a golden Texas star.

With tears in her eyes, the national president arose and accepted it.

"There is no star that shines like this one," she said, "and there is no star whose future, whose hope, whose will be more bright or fuller of peace and pure light. I shall wear it every where."

Mrs. Sam Greuther of San Angelo made the report of the literature committee.

Want Athletic Work.
Among the recommendations was one for more athletic work in the schools.

"Sentimentality is an unknown quantity with athletic girls," she said. She reported that Mrs. Charles E. Acree of Hillsboro, won the Hertzberg medal in the literature contest.

Mrs. J. P. Burton of Houston made the report of the library extension committee, taking the place of Mrs. S. Wiseman of McKinney.

The report contained a recommendation that county libraries be established at every courthouse with branches at every town in each county.

Miss Lillian Gunter of Gainesville led the discussion. She discussed traveling libraries in detail and expressed the belief that an appropriation should be obtained to help carry on the work.

Mrs. I. J. Wright of Paris, a former president of the state federation, made the report of the history committee.

Texas History Wanted.
The paramount work of the committee, she said, was the preparation of a book on the facts and traditions of Texas, to be published by June 1, 1913.

The work will be almost impossible soon, she said, because those old enough to remember the early history of the state are dying. A prize for the work, she said, had been awarded to Miss Lulu Kleberg of Cuero.

It is to contain information about educational and industrial pioneers as well as others.

Mrs. Wright's report also gave some reminiscences such as the book is to contain.

Mrs. W. R. Potter of Bowie led in the discussion. She read a history of Montague county written by her, which has been adopted by the county board as a text-book.

Mrs. A. P. Averill of El Paso made the report of the art committee.

Art Progress Good.
The suggestions of the committee have been received responsively by the club, she said, and over one-third of the clubs have at least one special art program.

Of the thirteen federated clubs in Fort Worth, she reported, every one gives support to the art work. She praised the work done by the clubs in the various districts.

Mrs. Maggie K. Barry told of the work done by Miss Margaret King, the federation's protegee in the North Texas College and Kidd-Key Conservatory. Miss King's good work, she explained, is made more remarkable because Miss King is both deaf and dumb.

Mrs. C. W. Connery of Fort Worth reported for the music committee. She asked the clubs to arrange programs to be given before the inmates of insane asylums and prisons. Music, she said, is a long step toward the solution of many problems.

The musical contest for composers, she said was a great success and located forty composers in Texas.

The gold medal offered by Mrs. Hertzberg for the best piano composition was won by Mrs. William E. Ransom of Corsicana. The medal offered by Mrs. Connery for the best song was won by Mrs. Louise Novelli of Dallas.

The report also announced that $10 will be given for the best verses to be sung to the tune "America" and to be adopted as the federation song.

Mrs. Scott read the report of the humane education committee, Mrs. William Gerhardt of Corpus Christi being absent. She told of the work of the humane societies in Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston, Galveston and San Antonio and mentioned evidence of a desire of many other towns to form humane societies.

Discussion was led by Mrs. C. H. Newby.

Press Session.
The press session was held in an anteroom of the church, beginning at 11 o'clock Thursday morning. Mrs. R. R. Daney of Houston presided.

Mrs. R. P. Robbins of Cleburne, member of the press committee from the second district, gave a brief resume of the work that committee has done for the federation, and gave her reasons for considering the committee a necessity for the success of the federation work.

"Newspapers vs. Magazines for Official Organs" was the subject assigned to Mrs. Mattie T. Leman of San Antonio. Mrs. Leman went into the details in telling of the good done by the right sort of newspaper publicity, and pointed out the many successful campaigns conducted with their aid. She reminded the women of the thoroughness of the newspaper in reaching all classes.

Mrs. R. H. Hill of Waco discussed the duties of the district press members. She is the member from the fourth district.

"How the Press Committee Can Forward the Work of the General Federation" was the subject assigned to Mrs. Hal W. Peck of Corsicana, member from the third district.

Mrs. R. L. Shindler of Dalhart spoke on "The Kind of Federation News Always Welcome to Newspapers."

After a brief discussion the meeting adjourned shortly after noon.

Music, Schools and Home.
Mrs. C. W. Connery of Fort Worth presided at the music session of the convention. The chairmen of the music committees of the various districts made brief talks. Miss Ethel Morris of San Marcos, chairman of the committee of the fifth district, was unable to attend on account of illness, and her subject, "Music in Our Churches," was discussed by Mrs. George R. Clayton of Fort Worth.

Miss Louise Pace of Corsicana opened the session with a talk on "Music in the Home," and Mrs. Virginia Ryan of Waco, chairman of the fourth district, spoke on "Music in Our Clubs." The subject of a talk of Mrs. Marshall Ferguson of Stephenville, chairman of the first district, was "Music in Our Towns," and Mrs. N. C. Snyder of Gainesville, chairman of the second district, spoke on "Music in Our Schools."

At the Home and School Clubs conference Mrs. K. D. Thompson of McKinney urged a closer relation between the home and school and the advantages of such relations were emphasized by Mrs. P. P. Tucker of Dallas. Miss Lida Douglas of Beeville spoke on the need in the rural districts for co-operation between the teachers and the mothers.

Cost Keeping

Cost keepers are constantly being criticised because the cost department costs too much. They want the information, but it costs too much to get it.

Now the Split & Normal Burroughs is one of the machines that is used in a great many cost departments for the reason it does about three times the amount of work the ordinary adding machine can do.

For instance, it will give you—pay checks, workmen's number and amount in one operation—show you hours and amount—give you labor and material—or, date, number of pieces and amount—all with one operation of the handle and will add only those columns that you want added.

Probably you have been worrying along with the ordinary type of adding machine, possibly because it costs a little bit less than usual.

If you haven't seen this Burroughs, you haven't seen the latest thing in adding machines.

U. S. TRIES TO PROVE THEFT.
Former Employee of Sub-Treasury Is Accused of Embezzlement.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—A number of witnesses were put on the stand by the government today in Federal Judge Carpenter's court in the trial of George Fitzgerald, a former employee of the United States sub-treasury in Chicago, charged with the embezzlement of $123,000 of government money.

Is S. Lock, a currency counter, testified he had been in Fitzgerald's cage in the sub-treasury about five times on the day the shortage occurred, February 29, 1907.

Fitzgerald always was in his cage on these occasions and witnesses said he did not notice anything unusual in Fitzgerald's demeanor when he reported the shortage.

BAKERY SHOP DOG'S RESTROOM.
Horrors, Critic Investigating Committee: Cur Disappears.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—A committee of five Chicago aldermen, of which Alderman Pretzel was chairman, appointed to inspect city bakeries, found a stray dog asleep on a pile of leaves in one shipping room and at another bakery leaves were found piled in the alley where wagons came in.

Lack of sanitary precautions were general, according to the committee. Some of the well organized bakeries had perfect sanitary conditions, however, it was declared.

The proprietor of the bakery where the dog was found asleep said he did not know where the animal came from or when. The dog was driven out, but the bread on which he had been lying was delivered.

MISS FORTUNE HIS COMPANION.
Cripple Claims Hardluck Champion-ship of Buckeye State.

Stephenville, O., Nov. 21.—Martin O'Brien of Stephenville today claimed the hardluck championship.

Six weeks ago his brother, John, fell from a train, receiving injuries that still confine him to a hospital. A week later another brother, Mathew, suffered a similar accident, subsequently O'Brien's wife was sent to a hospital seriously ill. Just as she had recovered his five-year-old child died of diphtheria. Today his brother-in-law, Leo, fell from a train and received injuries that may be fatal. O'Brien is a cripple. He lost one arm in a railroad accident several years ago.

Local News Notes

Charged with the theft of valuable jewelry from Mrs. C. H. Tupper, Nellie Washington, formerly cook in the household, was held to the grand jury yesterday by Magistrate Dan Ford in the sum of $400. She was arrested by Detective Lee Jenkins and Officer Lee Huff.

Embezzlement of a dime is worth a day in jail, according to Judge Tom L. McCullough of the county court, who yesterday passed this sentence on James Reed when the latter pleaded guilty to having failed to turn in this sum to his employers at the McClelland shoe-shine parlors.

Jud Lowrey, who was fined in the city court on a charge of larceny, received a double dose in Judge Tom L. McCullough's court yesterday morning when tried on the same charge. The jury returned a verdict of guilty and fixed his penalty at $100. In the same court Joe Medina, charged with carrying a dirk, was sentenced to thirty days in jail.

Backed through the plank railing along the Bosque bridge, despite the fact that men were struggling to lead him toward the center, a frightened horse precipitated a buggy, in which were two ladies, to the ground 12 feet below. A daughter of Dr. Caldwell of China Springs was seriously injured and the buggy was demolished. The injured woman was taken to the home of Mrs. C. R. Turner, near the bridge, where her father, Dr. Caldwell, who had been following her in another buggy, dressed her injuries before taking her home.

Waco was dark for five minutes last night. The darkness was so intense that automobile lamps and side lamps on cars resembled lighthouses. Promptly at 11:30 the lights went out and were dark for the ensuing five minutes. The trouble was due to a short circuit at the power house, which was quickly repaired.

There was a meeting of the committee which is to write the city charter held yesterday afternoon, but only preliminary work was taken up. The secretary was instructed to obtain copies of the present charter, with which members of the committee are to work.

State Commission Will Protest.
Austin, Nov. 21.—The railroad commission has agreed to protest to the interstate commerce commission against the proposed rule in the milling in transit regulations demanding that identity of the wheat be preserved when that wheat is moved interstate and milled under the milling-in-transit privileges. N. Dittlinger of New Braunfels saw Chairman Mayfield and urged that such a rule would prove disastrous. Mr. Mayfield agreed to file the protest, and he will send it to the interstate commission very shortly.

OPENING BALL AT THE PHILO CLUB

The inclemency of the weather did not disturb those who have planned for an enjoyable evening in the midst of the delightful hospitality and cheer at the Philo Club on the occasion of the annual opening ball, and while wet streets and falling rain made the ride to the home of the Philo Club, once within the hall, and wraps removed, there was no further thought of the conditions over head and under foot.

The annual ball at the Philo is one of the important social affairs of the city. The Philo is one of the oldest organizations in Texas, and while its purpose was not that of a social nature, since it has taken on social life, it has moved to the front in that regard and is recognized from one end of the state to the other as such, and nothing can ever take from it that prestige. The Philo was organized back in the eighties—about 1884. Then it was known as a literary club and it met from week to week at the homes of the members where the young men who formed its membership recited poems and blank verse, read essays, and gave opinions of Shakespeare, Byron, Longfellow and other well known men with whom they had a reading acquaintance. There were just a few members at the beginning, but gradually the club became larger. Some money had been spent for books, but there were not enough to suit those who were for literature inclined, and along about May, 1887, the club gave a "book reception" at the residence of James I. Moore, who then lived in the house that is now the McLendon home, on Austin avenue, where Eleventh street would extend if opened. The invitation to that affair was written in verse by Robert J. Tolson, who was one of the original members of the club; every guest was asked to bring a book to be given to the club library, and there was a collection as a result of that affair, and the club represented every kind of literature. Gradually the club began to turn more to social affairs, and as it broadened its social sphere so did its membership increase. The first effort at elaborate quarters was when the home of the organization was established upstairs on Franklin street, between Fourth and Fifth in the Walker block. There many delightful social events were had, with the club as host, and there is in the memory of women and men of Waco, pleasant recollections of some of the affairs that were held in that hall.

Later the club moved to the corner of Eighth and Austin avenue upstairs, and there it has held sway as the principal social organization of this city, extending its social offices year after year to the charming young women who were the season's debutantes. More elaborate each year the club affairs have grown, and more entrancing the pleasure that has been afforded by its social functions.

That it has reached the highest social point this season is a concession to its position which every one will accord. Under the direction of Thos. F. Bush, recently elected president, the club starts the season under the most auspicious circumstances, and in this year's beginning he has a number of assistants who are bending their energies with as much enthusiasm as he is giving to it. In arranging for this affair, Mr. Bush called to his aid the committee of hostesses who are famed in Waco for their hospitality and their knowledge of entertaining and decorating. Under their careful direction, the most refined and delicate interior was fashioned, and as the dancers last night moved in harmony to the pretty music furnished by the pleasure within a perfect armor, than which there has been no prettier built artificially or by nature created. The entire overhead of the hall room was net work of vines, from which hung the tinted leaves of the autumn season, and bunches of richly colored, ripening grapes. There was no place overhead that had not been so decorated, the arbor effect extending in width and length of the entire room. At intervals through these pretty leaves and vines were hung varly colored incandescent lamps of small candle power—just enough light to give the evening autumn effect. There was illuminated bay trees also in the hall.

Extending from the dancing hall to the dining hall in the rear was a beautifully fashioned pergola effect, carrying out still the grape arbor decoration.

In the punch room, the table decorations were American Beauty roses. The punch bowl was beneath a pretty arbor, in the center of which overhead hung a huge illuminated cluster of grapes. The punch bowl was an artistic success. It was placed within a receptacle around the front of which there was a row of lights, after the manner of the foot light construction of a theatre. These lights illuminated the bowl from every angle. In connection with this punch bowl was an artistic figure of a couple dancing, and arranged so as to be brought out in bold relief were the figures "1884-1912" indicating the year of organization and the year of the ball being given.

There were fourteen numbers on the dance card, and in addition there was a favor figure; and the favors for the ladies being parasols and those for the gentlemen being walking canes. Mr. Bush led the grand march with Miss Ida Orand. He led the collection, also. There was but one cotillion figure.

The punch bowl creation was the work of William C. Abel, who gave his energy and his time to its success. He worked out a pretty idea with it, and the artistic success of it was none the less pretty than the refreshing effect of the delightful punch.

The dinner service was unique. At the intermission in the dances, the orchestra played a pretty march, and the negro waiters came on the dance floor carrying small tables, each large enough for four. There were fifty of these. They were placed about the floor, where but a moment before the dancers had been enjoying the music, and the guests were seated. The supper was served, the music played a "retreat," and the waiters removed the tables as quickly as they had brought them out.

The social season is now open. The Philo has always been the social mentor in this regard. From now on through the holidays Society will be at its best, and there will be functions day by day at which those who are of society's realm will enjoy the pleasures that are of that fashionable life.

AFTERNOON AT BRIDGE WITH MRS. HARRY HYMAN

Mrs. Harry Hyman very delightfully entertained at Bridge Wednesday afternoon in honor of her sister, Miss Annie Stolaroff of El Paso. The house was artistically decorated with autumn leaves. A salad course was served, followed by ice cream and cake. Candy was served during the games. The first prize, a gold and hand-painted plate, was won by Miss Mabel Silvers. The second prize was a cut glass powder box, fell to Miss Gussie Landman, while the consolation prize, a fan, was carried off by Miss Sadie Lawrence.

Those enjoying the afternoon were Mesdames Sam Roscoe, Louis Katz, Milton Strauss, Leon Mittenhal, Nate Cinnamon, Eli Marks, Morris Wood, Meyer Nathan, Al Pimentel, A. Friedlander, E. Goldberg and the Misses Annie Stolaroff, Mabel Silvers, Sadie Lawrence, Isadora Levy, Elise Haber, Edie Simmons, Clara Archibald, Evelyn Friedman, Goldie Hart, Cecile Strauss, Hannah, Nettie and Lillian Efron, Mary Levine, Rose Garfinkle, Goldie and Bella Rosenthal, Minnie Katz, Mabel Robinson, Jennie Novich, and Gussie Landman.

The course in hygiene to be given free to members by the association has been arranged with Southwestern University, University of Texas, United States Army Post, San Antonio by the Young Men's Christian Association, one game to be played by the local team at home and one at home of each of these teams. Physical Director S. C. Pew expects to be able to announce the dates within a few days.

December 9, Dr. H. E. Hoke, city bacteriologist, will speak on "Six Hygiene."

January 6, Dr. G. B. Fosque will talk upon the subject of "Physical Development by Exercise."

Ther dates are for the present open, but Director Pew has several experts whom he hopes to be able to secure to give lectures upon the eye, ear, nose and throat and other subjects. The course will continue for eight weeks.

A professional men's class will begin at the Y. M. C. A. in December, the exercise to be between 12:30 and 1 o'clock each day. All who desire to enter this class are expected to hand in their names to Mr. Pew at once.

Other Arrests Made.

Following the arrest of Colonel Bybee Wednesday evening by Constable Leslie Stegall and Deputy E. H. Smith, and his arraignment in Magistrate Harvey M. Richie's court yesterday morning, a warrant was issued for Mike Mooney charged with receiving stolen goods in connection with the theft of $130 worth of tires from Pat Hopkins' shop on South Eighth street months ago. Mooney was arrested and gave bond late yesterday afternoon in the sum of $400 for his appearance in court.

The theft of the tires from the Hopkins plant, which is charged against Bybee, occurred on October 15. The case against Bybee was called in Justice Richie's court yesterday. Assistant County Attorney D. C. Woods representing the state. After the case had been entered into a continuance was agreed to in order that other warrants might be sworn out.

Italian Electrocutted.

M. E. ELDERS' REPORT PLEASING

East Texas Conference Admits Nineteen New Men—Dr. Bulla, of Sunday Magazine Honored.

Marshall, Nov. 21.—Nineteen new men were admitted to the East Texas Methodist Episcopal church conference today. The presiding elders made their reports, showing large numbers of accessions to the church last year. Many new churches were erected. Finances were reported in excellent shape.

Dr. Bulla, assistant editor of the Sunday School magazine, presented Bishop Mouzon with a gavel made of wood from the house of George A. Arnold, in which Bishop Asbury, the first American bishop, died.

Committee meetings were then called and the conference adjourned until Friday.

MONGOLIAN SITUATION.

China and Russia May Battle Over Possession.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—A special cable to the Chicago Daily News from Peking, China, contains the following on the Mongolian situation:

"Lu Cheng Hsian, minister of foreign affairs, yesterday presented a note to the Russian minister concerning Russia's action in making a treaty with Mongolia. In this situation China appears to be following the tactics adopted by Sir Shao Yi in 1906 when he converted Tang Francis Younghusband's treaty with Tibet into a treaty with China.

"Lu Cheng Hsian proposes altering Russia's recent note so as to preserve Chinese suzerainty over Mongolia with the minimum loss of control and dignity at the principal point. China to send sufficient soldiers to Mongolia to guard the Chinese residents and a sufficient number of officials to protect Chinese interests. The Chinese apparently are willing to concede autonomy to Mongolia, but they are not willing to allow lands, mines and railways to be owned and operated by foreigners, including Russians."

DECISION FAVORS WILSON.

California Court of Appeals Acts on Election Case.

Los Angeles, Nov. 21.—The district court of appeals handed down a decision in the election controversy late today, which democratic leaders declare will place California in the Wilson column.

The decision was against the method of the board of supervisors in canvassing the returns of Los Angeles county. The court held that the tallies should be counted and not the certification. At least one precinct, that of Pasadena, No. 4, will be virtually thrown out by the decision, with a loss of 103 plurality for all Roosevelt electors except Wallace.

WATCH MANUFACTURER DIES.

Theophilus Zurbrugg Was President of Keystone Watch Company.

Philadelphia, Nov. 21.—Theophilus Zurbrugg, former president of the Keystone Watch Case Company, which was the principal defendant in the government's suit to dissolve the so-called "watch case trust," died last night.

Mr. Zurbrugg was a native of Switzerland.

MANIAC IN COURT.

Man Who Invaded Police Station Must Answer Charge.

Los Angeles, Nov. 21.—Carl Riedelbach, who invaded Central police station Tuesday with an infernal machine, was arraigned in the municipal court today charged with a violation of the law which prohibits the placing of dynamite in any place where human beings congregate with malicious purpose to kill or maim. The charge was made by the city attorney. The arraignment was the result of a decision that none of the state hospitals for the insane has sufficient safeguards against the escape of homicidal lunatics. The preliminary hearing was set for next Monday.

AIRSHIP DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Occupants of Hydro Aeroplane Making Cross-Country Trip Escape.

St. Louis, Nov. 21.—The hydro aeroplane of Tony Jannus was destroyed by fire this afternoon just as Jannus was starting on his flight down the Mississippi river from St. Louis to New Orleans. Jannus and his companion, W. H. Trafts, a photographer, jumped and escaped injury.

The engine back-fired as it was being started and the flames enveloped the machine.

Plans Barring Organ Grinder.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 21.—The Italian organ grinder and his monkey, if members of the local Italian colony have their way with the city council will soon be banished here. The Italians who are not of the organ grinder class think their countrymen could be better employed than with an organ and a monkey for a street show, and today one of them, Isaac B. Hienzezi, a contractor, as representative of the Italian colonists, had a petition drawn for submission to the city council, asking that body to grant no more licenses to organ grinders.

"Roswell" Week Great Showing of R. & W. Overcoats for Men.

Today and Saturday our new men's section will be turned over to a special display of R. & W. Overcoats. It is a showing that in point of numbers and style attractiveness surpasses anything we have hitherto attempted.

See Our Window Display

One entire show window is given over to a display of these coats, a collection that will delight the eye, please the pocket-book and give the maximum of overcoat comfort and value. Take a look as you pass by this window today.

500 Men's Overcoats---Styles for All Occasions, $18, $20, $25 to $35

We are overcoat specialists. In presenting this collection, we offer you overcoats of the very finest class. No matter what the price you pay, you get full measure for your money. R. & W. Overcoats are made by men who make nothing but overcoats. The little details such as the stitching, the linings, the buttons, all receive as careful thought and attention as the selection of the cloth, the choosing of the patterns.

The R. & W. Overcoats have convertible collars. You can wear them in the ordinary way or button them tightly about the neck. In cravenette cloths, rough mixtures, gray diagonals, brown and tan colorings, plain black. Some have belted backs; others plain; the Raglan shoulder is a noticeable style. Three-quarter and full length coats. Just simply an assortment in which a man, no matter how "Overcoat-unwise" he may be, cannot possibly go wrong. Drop in and look them over at first hand.

"Lesser Profit" Prices on Men's Suits

Men's Suits, too, just as high class as the Overcoats. For business men the Benjamin and Michaels-Stern Clothes. For the young fellow and the college man, L. System Suits. Too well known to need extended comment. We just want to remind you again that only here in Waco can you buy them.

$18, $20, $22.50, $25 up to $40.

INFORMERS HEADED FOR TEXAS

Quartette Connected With Gunmen's Trial and Conviction Leave New York After Given Liberty.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 21.—"Bridge" Webber, Harry Vallon, Jack Ruge and Sam Schepps, the four informers in the Rosenthal case who were reported in New York today, are reported to have been passengers on the Lake Shore Limited which passed through Albany westward bound at 9 o'clock tonight.

The four are said to be on their way to Texas.

Hot Springs Mayor Objects.

Hot Springs, Ark., Nov. 21.—Learning of the expressed intention of Sam Schepps, the "keystone" in the trial of Lieutenant Charles Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the New York gambler, Mayor W. W. Waters of this city today sent the following message to Schepps:

"Sam Schepps, care District Attorney Whitman, New York.

"Having read in newspaper dispatches from New York that you contemplate returning to Hot Springs immediately after your release from jail in New York, I desire to notify you as mayor of Hot Springs, representative of the best interests of the city, your presence here is not desired. Hot Springs, by your former visit, gained undesired notoriety, therefore, and request that you stay away, you and quest that you stay away, you and persist in coming here, I as mayor of Hot Springs will not permit you to remain. W. W. Waters, Mayor of Hot Springs."

"WHITE SLAVE" INVESTIGATION

Nine Young Girls Involved in Case Against Man.

Washington, Nov. 21.—After listening to the stories of nine young girls, Clyde B. Ambrose, a special investigator for the department of justice who has been investigating "white slave" cases, caused the arrest of Arthur Shank, aged 47, chief engineer of the government pumping station at Roslyn, Va., across the Potomac river from the capital. If Val Ambrose is satisfied, consider it safe, Shank will be surrendered to them today.

The investigation ending in Shank's arrest began with the arrest of Marie Merritt, a 14-year-old girl, who was charged with incorrigibility and arraigned in the juvenile court. A startling story in which she mentioned Shank and on being pressed, furnished the names of nearly a score of other girls ranging in age from 10 to 16 years. The case was reported to the department of justice and Mr. Ambrose at once began an inquiry. Only one of the girls could be induced to talk.

The children are daughters of parents in more or less humble circumstances. A quarrel that arose between three of them over the division of money given them to attend a moving picture show is said to have hastened the exposure of the alleged conditions.

SUIT TO BE RESUMED.

Claim Will Be Made to Cross-Examine Witnesses.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—When the hearing of the United States government's suit to dissolve the International Harvester company is resumed here tomorrow before Special Examiner Robert S. Taylor, Edwin P. Grosvenor, special assistant to the attorney general, will demand that the government's witnesses heard at the previous session in Chicago be cross-examined.

The present hearing will continue a week, then to be taken up again.

Man's Death Mysterious.

Oklahoma City, Nov. 21.—Mystery surrounds the shooting of Guy Blackburn, 18 years old, who died today in a hospital. He was shot Saturday night at the roadhouse of Eva Chapman, and the shooting was kept a secret until after he died.

According to the police, the shooting was done by a young woman, the daughter of wealthy parents, who had quarreled with Blackburn a short time before.

Is Held to Grand Jury.

Unable to free the woman under the law, Magistrate Dan Ford yesterday admitted Wilbur Powell, a nekrass, to bond in the sum of $100 to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of having stabbed to death Jesse Allen.

According to the evidence, Allen entered her house on the night in question. She threatened the woman a number of times and then began to beat her. He struck her over the head several times with a piece of earthenware, then caught her wrist with one hand and beat her over the head with the other. The woman all the time was screaming for help. She admitted on the stand that she had the knife, but said she did not remember having cut the negro, although she admitted the bare possibility that under the stress of excitement she had done so.

Bull Moose Have Love Feast.

Indianapolis, Nov. 21.—Several hundred workers of the progressive party from all parts of the state held a love feast here tonight, at which former Senator Albert J. Beveridge, defeated for governor, was hailed as the party's next candidate for the presidency.

The Gold Dust Twins' Philosophy

NOW you have often said: "Oh dear, I dread when eating time comes near. It's not so much the cooking, grub, but cleaning after,"—there's the "rub." Each kitchen holds a mass of work, no tidy little wife should shirk.

Gold Dust vs. Kitchen Worry

The kitchen sink, the kitchen sink, the kitchen pots as black as ink, the kitchen kettles and the pans, the silver, glass and cups and cans; wherever you may look, the toil means more than any kettle boil. To just "prepare" a meal is "fun," but work, with THAT is scarce "begun."

If those who stay up days and nights to win the cause of "Women's Rights" would only vote the GOLD DUST PLAN they soon would have the best of man. More time for comfort and for smiles; more time to play a woman's wiles, for once the GOLD DUST TWINS appear, Hard Labor's cry you never hear; frail woman is a queenly soul who plays the "Take-it-Easy" role. Each GOLD DUST package sets her free by bearing out its guarantee, and never more those household woes that every weary woman knows. Pile up the dishes as you will, the GOLD DUST TWINS will clean 'em still. Old floors and woodwork sinks and pans, turn out as Master Cleaner Plans. From sun to sun, and chore to chore, your tasks will fret you nevermore.

"Attention," says the Beaumont Enterprise, "is drawn to Port Arthur. Port Arthur has always appeared to us as a very attractive little port and we cannot understand why Attention should be so reluctant to sojourn therein for a time without having the place forced on him, as it were."

Will some bright Texas schoolchild work out this problem for us? If the "crippled" Farmers of A. & M. College walk to the tune of 41 to 6 an eleven from a little institution called "Julane," capable of making a "good defense," what would be the score if the Texas boys were not crippled and the New Orleans aggregation were capable of making no defense? While hating to disappoint the country editor who expects us to reply: "This is no news," we merely remark this appears to be another Wicker-sham.

One ray of hope for the youth who goes to college merely to play football: His training as quarter-back should fit him to be an expert dictator to his fellow clerk who operates the adding machine.

The brightest feature of Senator Gore's suggestion that the government pay campaign expenses is his placing the Donkey's figure at $400,000 in excess of the Bull Moose's and $500,000 in excess of the Elephant's. He may leave per quota at $1,000,000, but until he cuts a few cyphers from his estimate for the two cypher parties we must veto his proposition.

The Boston Globe is moved to feminine that thirty-five years ago a Harvard student was conspicuous if he had a bicycle. Now there are twenty-two motor cars owned by Harvard students. The Globe should go farther and remind that a Harvard student of the type of some of those now owning motors would have been impossible thirty-five years ago.

There have been two huge chunks cut from old King Sol's nothing-new-under-the-sun cheese in the past week. A Chicago man was sentenced by a court to idleness, as work did not improve his habits, and a crimeless German begged the Governor of Texas to send him to the penitentiary for life.

Heaven knows we encounter thousands of examples of stressing the obvious, every day, but this latest "sensational" that Archbold is immune from arrest on the Texas oil indictment is the obnoxious and the most distressing.

WOMAN-TAUGHT.

Mothers of Texas will have reason to be grateful for the work and discussions of the State Federation of Women's clubs at Fort Worth if the advocacy of common sense and the elimination of prudery and false modesty in teaching the girl, at home, the existence of social evils and the dangers she must avoid, as voiced by Dr. Mary Burnham of San Angelo, in Wednesday's proceedings on "Social Ethics," are to take definite shape in resolutions and recommendations that women's clubs throughout Texas shall preach—and practice—such common sense method.

The women's convention is being conducted on the highest plane, of course; topics of discussion along worthy lines are numerous—charity, civic improvement, the care of the tubercular, tree planting, playgrounds for children, fire prevention being among the most notable and important matters considered and indicating how wide is the province of this great organization for usefulness and public good. But we cannot refrain from applauding and especially emphasizing the advice of Dr. Burnham, for we think therein is the only sensible, efficacious treatment of the problems of social degeneracy and immorality, so far as concerns home teaching of paths that wind and must be known to be shunned. In Dr. Burnham's suggestion—rather unconsciously a paraphrase of the first statement made by Pope concerning the monstrosity of vice—is the beginning of wisdom advised in wholesome, helpful fashion: the woman-taught, the mother-taught girl in the average home.

As long as poverty exists, the social evil will persist; there is no getting away from that situation. As long as girls are underpaid and overworked in the big shops of big cities, in factories and lofts, there will be victims for the predatory man and the creatures of the house of ill fame. As long as there are homes where hunger is the daily disorder of things and as long as vice can be made glowing and attractive for the pretty, poor girl, or the untaught daughter of the rich, for that matter, this character of crime and disease, physical and moral death, will increase.

It is earnestly to be desired that the federation will recommend the observance of these "social ethics," not only that its own educated, cultured women may teach their children sensibly, unashamed by antique, detrimental standards that the child, especially the girl, should be kept in ignorance of the sins of things as they are and should not be permitted to come in contact with any defiling phase of social conditions, but that these club women may be better fitted to teach the less cultured, less educated mother—the untaught working woman—how to guide the daughter who is most in danger of being trapped.

By all means, let there be "a more impersonal consideration of social problems." Let the women realize the danger really exists, determine to teach their own children and to help the less fortunate mother make the most of her motherhood in caring for the welfare of the girl. Let it be a woman-taught world, after all these decades of doubtful-effect teaching by men. Let there be less occasion for the specialist's primer on "hygiene of sex"; "what every woman should know," and like treatment of a grave, but common sense theme that should be treated in the most common sense way—home teaching. Let there be fewer sensational lectures and sermons on the social evil, less occasion for the "intimate talks" columns of woman's publications, and let there be education in the home on how to avoid and how to help.

Dr. Burnham urged, and her advice is sound, that the danger is greater than the danger from tuberculosis and all other such scourges, and the only remedy for the condition is with the mothers of the United States.

"I believe it is just as possible for a mother to keep in touch with her boys as it is for her to keep in touch with her girls. Apply to the society and get literature on the subject. There should be classed as criminal the mother who allows her child to go out into the world without being warned of the dangers of life."

"We have what we call a 'moral' world now. Women are taught by their husbands, and often with the best intentions this does harm, because the information is obtained from the depths. No reform ever was accomplished secretly. The work to be successful must be aired. The people of the nation are becoming defective at the rate of 4 per cent a year, the United States is in danger of becoming a nation of defectives."

UNIVERSAL CONTEMPT.

To those who were, early in the situation that developed consequent to the arrest of the negro postmistress, Johnson, in Chicago, disposed to cavil at the seeming immoderation with which the press of this region shelled the prisoner of the federal government and the existence of a condition that could so mislead him from the bounds irrevocably fixed for his race, the events of the past week in a city beyond the antipodes should be illuminating. In Melbourne, Australia, where the negro's fighting arrangements were cancelled because of the abhorrence aroused by this charge of abducting a white girl, mob violence almost resulted from the presence of a white woman in a troupe of American negro minstrels, and it was cabled to this country that the government might be obliged to deport the minstrels if their safety was to be insured.

Here is a community remote as the bounds of the globe from the scene of Johnson's alleged outrage and the warmest virulence of race restriction as regards white women: a nation made up chiefly of English who are oftentimes described as "phlegmatic," unimpassioned. And yet so great was the disgust the world over when the Chicago incident was reported that the personal safety of American negroes was threatened in Australia! If there is one lesson that will come from this Johnson business, it is the lesson that the South knows whereof it speaks in demanding that the negro shall keep within the limitations fixed for his race by the demands of decency, human order and self-preservation.

Ohio has not been altogether free from race troubles and agitation; the State is, of course, too close to the South territorially to escape these problems. It is of interest to read the comment of the Cleveland Leader on the result of Johnson's over-stepping the rigid rule of conduct fixed for his race by that section of the nation best acquainted with that race:

When Jack Johnson won the heavyweight championship of the world, and especially when he retained it in his fight with Jeffries, the advance those who said that he had done his race a great service. They argued that he had put fresh pride and confidence into millions of men who needed such a spur to ambition. The theory was that Johnson's prowess would encourage other colored men to advance more vigorously for equal rights and equal attainment in better fields of occupation and achievements.

Now Jack Johnson has done more to discourage and dishearten the best and wisest men of his race than he could offset by winning ten championships. They are ashamed and disgusted and in such a frame of mind that thousands of them would mind an opportunity to give him a coat of tar and feathers and ride him on a rail over the nearest international boundary. Johnson has done more than any other one man of his color to put arguments in the mouths of enemies of his race who would deny the negro any form of equal rights, if it were in their power to do so.

All of which goes to show that brains and character, not brute force, must be depended upon to advance the interests and widen the future of a race lately freed from slavery. It is to the Booker Washingtons, not to the Jack Johnsons, that the negro in America must look for inspiration and assistance in bettering his lot and brightening the outlook for his children and his children's children.

GIFT TO THE TEXAS.

The Austin Chamber of Commerce is suggesting to organizations and to the press of the State that women and children of Texas present a set of flags to the new dreadnought "Texas" that was launched during the past summer. The secretary of the capital city Chamber advises the matter has been broached to the secretary of the navy and it is expected that official will advise as to the sort of flags that may be considered appropriate for the presentation to this nagsake battleship.

The Waco News gladly gives its support to this proposal, as requested, and considers the sentiment implied in a gift of flags by women and children to the man-of-war named for their State thoroughly a delightful one. We would be interested in knowing just what the idea of the Austin organization embraces—whether the gift is to be battle flags, national or naval flags, signal or other banners, in order that we might be better prepared to commend the plan to the women and children of this part of the State. Either national flags or naval ensigns of silk would be a beautiful and appropriate gift. And it would more than supplement the more substantial gift this State should make to the new dreadnought, as is customary—a service of silver plate or a sculptured figure of victory. For this tribute from the women and children would be quite as highly appreciated by the officers and men of the "Texas."

REMOVING PLAQUE SPOTS.

There probably never has been a more important, more commendable attack on a vicious condition than Wednesday's raid by postoffice inspectors and federal officers in twenty-two cities on doctors and drug concerns alleged to have misused the mails to solicit criminal medical practice or to dispose of medicines or instruments connected with such practice. If the government can prove its case by strong evidence, its work should result materially in reducing the amount of such criminality throughout the United States. The extent and skill of this remarkable raid challenge admiration for the powerful agencies that worked up and consummated the arrest of so many alleged participants in a practice that the best effort of government, society and social organizations have so long been endeavoring to eradicate.

For many years crimes involving the criminal practice of medicine have horrified the nation—as witness the suit-case mystery in Boston some years ago, and the bulk of murders in which women were victims have had some end in the shocking practice. Medical societies everywhere have denounced it, and in many states the penalty for practice of this sort runs as high as twenty years. There is no doubt that the law must stamp out the general condition, and we agree with the postmaster-general that this notable raid will have salutary effect. Meanwhile it behooves physicians everywhere to assist the officers of the law in tracking down and punishing that which in some respects may be considered a slander on the fair name of a great, humane profession.

Texas Viewpoints

It Might Be Worse.
The news comes from Austin that one of the attorney general's assistants has found that the act of 1909 regulating the division of the territory to be affected by a stock law election was omitted from the revised statutes of 1911. There are other statutes of importance, or portions thereof, that were omitted by the codifiers, but the immortal thirty-second legislature adopted their report with sublime nonchalance. The twenty-fourth legislature did likewise with the report of the codifiers of the revised statutes of 1895, with expensive result. The plan under which the laws are revised and codified every ten years in this State is farcical in the extreme. —Beaumont Enterprise.

Really, we think The Enterprise is a trifle too hard on the legislature that not only adopted the codifiers' report, but generously donated $25,000 more to "complete" it. To be sure, Mr. Colquitt was severely criticized for vetoing that donation, but the supreme court negated his V. B. B. (very bad bill) by finding he waited a day too long before setting hostile pen to wasted paper. So the trio of codifiers received their $25,000, a few clerks and young attorneys were made glad some more by this "completion" work, and the State is now presented with the new penal and civil codes and statutes, which The Enterprise appears to think were improvised, rather than revised. Surely the Beaumont editor did not expect the legislature to appoint a committee of lawyers carefully to examine the codifiers' report with the codifiers, or find some basis for donating that extra $25,000 for "indexing and annotating" the work? That would have been real work, and the State might have been benefitted. Yet we would bid the Enterprise and the lawyers of Texas to take heart. By purchasing copies of the revised statutes and the penal code, the list of some 500 "errata" in the codifiers' work that the secretary of State found it necessary to publish, by keeping daily in close touch with the opinions of the seven assistant attorneys general who detect further omissions from or improper inclusions in the codes and statutes, and examining carefully the decisions of the nine appellate courts and the supreme court, Texas lawyers should be greatly benefitted by the product of the board of codifiers.

His Last Sin.

It would appear from his stabs at Texas that Albert Hubbard came down to Texas in the role of a deliverer. He was received with open arms in his tour of Texas and in quite a number of the cities he was covered from head to foot with adobe supplied by enthusiasts. The Greenville Banner is one paper that did not lose its head during its stay in Texas. The Banner says: "It was understood at the time that Albert Hubbard came to Texas to lecture that he came to gather material for telling the world of Texas' great wealth of resources and possibilities. This much was set forth in numerous statements spread over the State some months before he came. But this fact from his pen sounds rather suspicious. It appears that he, perhaps, came for a different reason, to commit Texas' sins, sins which have proven their worth along lines of protecting the people. He in writing to the New York American, says: 'Texas laws have made it difficult for the railroads to build and operate. The railroads have been over-taxed, over-supervised and subjected to many harassing and exasperating exactions.' —Tyler Courier-Times.

The Waco News also displayed no symptoms of hysteria during the honor of the East Auroran's presence and by the weight of his words, and said so in criticism and editorial concerning the lecture on the "romance of business"—and we received several billet-doux to the effect that we were all wrong. But we cannot find it in our heart to flagnellate Mr. Hubbard so much for what he is telling them "back home" about Texas' railroad laws as for numerous other shortcomings considered in the light of what Texas had been led to expect of this celebrated visitor. On the contrary, we can consistently praise his declaration that "Texas laws have made it difficult for the railroads to build and operate," for in this Mr. Hubbard is saying no more than are the progressive Texas newspapers—and the Waco News humbly includes itself in that category. If Mr. Hubbard is making such statements abroad in a spirit of candor, we have no fault to find; if he is making them in a spirit of slurring, it seems a poor return for Texas' hospitality and dollar-ticket patronage. If he is really desirous that Texas pass more liberal laws regulating railroad progress and operation, we would be glad to welcome him to the committee rooms of the Thirty-third legislature and feel sure that the lieutenant-governor-elect, being a newspaper man and therefore sensible, will see to it that the Fra has the privilege of the floor to address the Senate along these lines.

David Harum Revived.

We see no reason why a regular Horse Swappers' Day should not be made one of the weekly industrial features of every county in the state. Back in the old days horse swapping was one of the most important industries in the country, and men followed it for a living. When a man could swap horses all day, and then go home at night with the same horse and fifteen dollars in money he was considered as being the financial center of the community in which he lived.—Palestine Record.

By all means, reassemble the horse swappers and revive their day. We have missed him from fiction, the paragraph and the corner store these many years past. When occasionally we are blessed with a chance to attend a county fair we look for him in vain. He was pleasant, picturesque and harmless. We regret to see that the horse swapper is losing caste as the hero of Texas tales and motion pictures and that the horse thief is given so much prominence. It is a demoralizing change. And what a grateful relief it would be if we could turn again to racking the horse swapper's trades and even for a brief space forget the threadbare "joke" of the woman who spends the day bargain hunting and returns at night with a pool of thread and a dress pattern. There are no such women now, as the Benedicts' Club, grouching over its bills, will testify.

Whence the Source?

New York is enjoying a musical comedy known as "The Red Petticoat." For the benefit of the present generation of girls we will say the story of the red petticoat is the grand old garment with which the heroines of the last generation flagged the trains to prevent them from running into washouts.—Houston Post.

The Post's paragrapher must have had more intimate sources of knowledge than most writers, who judged solely by newspaper report in former years. We have never seen the aforesaid red petticoat except in 'way down East plays and although we have jaunted quite a bit of the world—yes, on foot—we can testify no red petticoat is hung with the wash out.

FOR NEW TAX LAWS

THE STATE COMMISSIONER WILL RECOMMEND A COMPLETE REVISION.

Has Been Studying the Statutes of Other States, and May Ask for a Tax Commissioner.

Austin, Nov. 21.—The forthcoming biennial report of State Tax Commissioner A. L. Love will recommend the appointment of a state tax commission to work out for the state of Texas a thoroughly modern and just system of taxation. Mr. Love, during his incumbency, has been studying carefully the operation of the tax laws of this state and has also gathered much information as to the operation of tax laws in other states. Furthermore, he has studied the tax laws of other countries. The result has been that he will urge the conclusion that perhaps Texas laws are not as equitable in every respect as they should be and that amendments would aid the state materially. He thinks the matter of such importance that he will urge the legislature to provide for a commission to make thorough research and recommend a system which will be above reproach. In his report he will deal with a number of other matters of vital importance to the state.

COLQUITT TO MAKE TOUR.
Will Visit State Institutions Before Writing His Message.

Austin, Nov. 21.—Governor Colquitt has abandoned his expressed intention of attending the governors' conference at Richmond, Va., in December. The press of official duties, the necessity of preparing a message for the thirty-third legislature, and other matters of this kind have forced him to this decision.

Governor Colquitt will attend the "Turkey trot" and other social functions in the state next week. The week following he will visit a number of state institutions preparatory to writing his message to the legislature and making recommendations as to the needs for the next two fiscal years. Then he will begin his message.

One of the first institutions which Governor Colquitt hopes to visit is the State Training School for Juveniles at Gatesville. There was a fire last about 1909 there, and several boys and five boys at the school have been detained in connection with it, the report being that four of them have confessed. He will look into conditions there generally. He will probably visit the Orphans' Home and the insane asylum, and perhaps the epileptic colony at Abilene also.

COUNTIES HAVE NOT REPORTED.
Presidential Returns Have Not Been Received by Secretary of State.

Austin, Nov. 21.—Announcement was made by Acting Secretary of State D. A. Gregg this morning that returns from 105 counties of the recent presidential election are still missing. Only 123 counties have reported properly up to this time. The state election board meets Monday and all returns which are not in by that time will not be considered. Harris county is the only large county which has reported. Dallas, Tarrant, Bexar and Galveston county returns are missing.

Special attention was today called to Article 225 of the Revised Criminal Statutes, reading:

"Officers, Failure of Duty.—Any judge, clerk, chairman or member of an executive committee, collector of taxes, county clerk, sheriff, county judge, judge of election, president of a county convention, or secretary of state, who wilfully fails or refuses to discharge any duty imposed upon him by this law, is guilty of a misdemeanor, unless the particular act under some other section of the law is made a felony."

TO ANALYZE FUELS AND FEEDS.
Purchasing Agent to Fix a Standard for the State.

Austin, Nov. 21.—State Purchasing Agent J. R. Elliott has just completed arrangements with the University of Texas whereby a series of analyses will be made of the coal, fuel oils and other oils furnished the state institutions. The analyses will determine whether or not the state is getting the best value for its money, and what grades are most economical for use, and a standard will be set for the future, the information gathered to be for future guidance. Mr. Elliott in writing the several superintendents at all times properly passed upon.

The Pure Food and Dairy commission has agreed to co-operate in analyzing food materials furnished the state institutions and will fix a standard for the quality of the food. It will do much to put the matter of supplies for state institutions on a more business-like basis.

Studying Stock and Bond Law.
Austin, Nov. 21.—Representative by C. McNamara, a candidate for speaker of the house of the thirty-third legislature, announced here today he will formally open up headquarters in Austin in his campaign a week or ten days before the legislative convenes.

Mr. McNamara was here in advance, preparing for his legislative work. In fact, he was in the railroad commission office, studying carefully the indebtedness of the Texas railroads, the amount of their outstanding bonds, etc. He saw members of the commission and went over carefully and then the situation regarding the issuance of the bonds. In other words, he looked carefully into the application of the stock and bond law. He left Austin with a number of commission reports and considerable data that he gathered in the campaign library.

success, many of them will follow it. He believes that it has been entirely successful because of the great number of permit men who were here to take the examination.

To Ask for a Rerhearing.
Austin, Nov. 21.—First Assistant Attorney General R. E. Crawford today began the preparation for the state of a motion for rerhearing to be filed in the bookkeeping case recently decided by the supreme court and styled The Texas and Pacific Railway Company et al. vs. Railroad Commission of Texas. The court held that the order in question was not a bookkeeping order and held against the commission. The commission has requested that a motion for rerhearing be filed by the attorney general's department.

Approved Reserve Agents.
Austin, Nov. 21.—The department of insurance and banking today approved the following banks as reserve agents for state banks:

Commerce Trust Company of Kansas City, Mo., for the Texas State Bank of Fort Worth.
South Texas Commercial National Bank of Houston for the Farmers State Bank of Rice.
Hanover National Bank of New York for the Farmers State Bank of Rice.
City National Bank of Galveston for the First State Bank of Ellinger.

New State Bank.
Austin, Nov. 21.—The state banking board has licensed the Farmers' State bank of Austin; capital stock $10,000; and a guaranty fund bank.

New Company is Licensed.
Austin, Nov. 21.—The department of insurance and banking today licensed the Central Union Fire Insurance company of Kansas City, Mo., to do business in this state.

HYDE FORCED LOAN, IS CLAIM

Former City Chamberlain's Alleged Proposition to Banker Testified to By That Individual.

New York, Nov. 21.—Joseph G. Robin testified at the trial of Former City Chamberlain Charles H. Hyde today that Hyde, by his control of city deposits, forced the Northern Bank to loan the Carnegie Trust Company $120,000 when the latter institution was about to collapse late in 1910. Robin, himself, found guilty of grand larceny, connected with the wrecking of the Northern Bank, and who has been awaiting sentence, is the state's principal witness against Hyde, charged with accepting a bribe as a public officer.

Although Hyde's counsel moved for quashing the indictment on the ground that no crime was charged, because it was not shown that the city chamberlain benefited by his alleged actions, Justice Goff reserved decision until the state's case was closed. District Attorney Whitman asserted he would "trace $125,000 of the Carnegie Trust Company's money into Hyde's pocket."

Robin said Wm. J. Cummins and J. B. Reichman introduced him to Hyde in the latter's office on August 22, 1910. Hyde explained that the trust company needed $150,000 and asked Robin to help "the boys," when Robin demurred, Hyde referred to the city deposits in Robin's bank, and declared that if the necessary aid was not forthcoming, he would draw out this money the next day. Robin continued.

"Then Mr. Robin said, 'If you will do what we want, I will give you deposits in the same amount as the loan that you will make. Leave it to me, and you loan these boys $500,000, I will give you that much in city funds.'"

Robin testified to calling a meeting of the executive committee of the Northern Bank the next morning, when he told the committee that if it loaned the trust company the money Mr. Hyde had promised to materially increase the city deposits.

SUFFRAGISTS IN CONVENTION

Initial Meeting to Held in Open Air
Visitors Got Welcome at Philadelphia By Mayor.

Philadelphia, Nov. 21.—Opening their forty-fourth annual convention here today, more than 500 delegates to the National American Woman Suffrage association received a prolonged demonstration.

The first business session was held this afternoon in Witherspoon hall, at which the delegates were welcomed by Mayor Blankenburg and others. The national president made her annual address at tonight's session and speeches were delivered by leaders of the movement in the four newly-enfranchised states—Kansas, Michigan, Arizona and Oregon.

Mayor Blankenburg said he had been a believer in equal rights for women for many years. He predicted that the newly enfranchised states were only the forerunners of many more. "In a few years," declared the mayor, "you may assuredly expect to see Pennsylvania, New York and other eastern states in line."

Wm. E. Brannetter of Oklahoma, representing the national woman's socialist association, assured the convention of the hearty support of the 800,000 voters of the socialist party throughout the country and of all the state organizations controlled by that party.

Rumors of Bishop's Diverse Doings

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 21.—The statement that Dr. H. Percy Silver of Topeka, recently elected bishop coadjutor for Kansas, was divorced two years ago by an Omaha court, is denied by officials here. The records of the court of Douglas show no such decree. Opposition to his consecration as a bishop by the Episcopal diocese at Albany, N. Y., was on the ground that he was divorced. The divorce was said to have been in Omaha while Dr. Silver was a chaplain in the army.

M'MANIGAL AGAIN ON STAND

Confessed Dynamiter Tells of Proposed Echo of Times Explosion to Relieve McNamara Suspicion.

Indianapolis, Nov. 21.—Equipped with twelve quarts of nitroglycerine, Orville E. McManigal in December, 1910, went to Los Angeles, Cal., commissioned to destroy the Times auxiliary plant and by "adding a few more to the list of dead" to take suspicion off James B. McNamara, who had killed twenty-one persons in the wreck of the Times building two months before.

McManigal so testified today at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial. He named men other than the McNamaras as having inspired the second Los Angeles plot. He said he was prevented from carrying it out because the auxiliary plant was too well guarded at night. Instead he set a bomb in an ironworkers' plant to explode Christmas day.

That was the "Christmas present," he said. Olaf A. Tveitmo, a labor union official in San Francisco, had asked for.

So elated was John J. McNamara over the escape of his brother that he proposed that McManigal start at once for Los Angeles to do some dynamiting.

"James B. said he would like to do it," said J. J. McNamara, "but I said, 'No, you're not going to do it. You're going to look for a stranger to do the job and get back east as soon as possible, and then the authorities would think their man was still in Los Angeles.'"

Leader of Recent Royalists Sentenced.

Lisbon, Portugal, Nov. 21.—Captain Henrique De Proa Concelos, leader of the recent royalist movement, today was sentenced to six years' imprisonment to be followed by ten years' exile. As an alternative, Concelos may choose a twenty-year exile.

OVER 100 LIVES TOLL OF STORM

HURRICANE IN SWEEPING JAMAICA CAUSES GREAT DEVASTATION.

MANY VESSELS FOUNDERED

Falling Buildings Pin Many Occupants Beneath Debris—Damage Increases With Investigation.

Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 21.—The official estimate of the dead in the hurricane and tidal wave which visited the western part of Jamaica places the number at more than 100 in the coast towns alone. Great devastation is indicated in the western section.

Practically all small vessels around Montego Bay were badly damaged, but no casualties are reported. The governor general of Jamaica, Sir Sydney Oliver, reached Montego Bay today and found conditions so direful that he ordered several hundred additional tents and large quantities of food supplies to Kingston. The railway lines are now working within 20 miles of Montego Bay, but the telegraph lines are still disorganized.

The tidal wave at Savanna La Mar was the highest in a century. One coasting vessel was washed half a mile up the main street. Fully 90 per cent of the houses were blown down. The two principal hotels were unroofed, as were all the churches and the railway depot.

The sea swept over the streets in the lower section of the town, and rows of dwellings were piled up in a gigantic heap at the mouth of a gully, where the largest number of dead bodies were recovered. An American tourist said forty bodies had been recovered up to the time of his departure.

At Green Island, eight miles southwest of Lucea, there was much wreckage, but no sign of life could be discovered.

At Lucea ten dead bodies were found after the storm had subsided.

THINK IT OVER

If you wanted to build a house, you would not go to a jewelry store to buy your lumber—now, would you? Why, certainly not. You would go to a lumber yard. If your automobile should "go dead" and you had said a great many things which would not look well in print, you would have that car overhauled by an automobile expert. If you are going to buy property, it is not just as essential that an expert should look into the matter for you. We have in our employ only those who have made a life study of records, letters and title examination and when we say your title is good, the word carries a great deal of weight, for that one word is backed up by a million-dollar company. Have the National Exchange Insurance and Trust company issue you a "title guaranty." Insure your title—then you know you are safe.

PROSECUTORS OF J. B. SNEED

Jury was seated. "Mr. Farwell, did not Al Boyce cash a check?"

"Don't do that, Mr. Johnson," Judge Swayne interrupted.

"Did not Al Boyce?"

"Don't do that,"

"Did not Al Boyce?" the attorney persisted, ignoring the protesting judge.

Judge Swayne was on his feet and asked about his desk.

"Don't do that," he shouted. "Mr. Sheriff, bring me my docket."

Then he entered the $100 fine against Johnson, who sat serenely sucking his unlighted cigar.

"Shall I pay the sheriff?" Johnson asked respectfully when the judge closed his docket.

"Never mind," Judge Swayne answered. "You may pay me later."

"But I don't want this fine hanging over me throughout the trial," Johnson persisted. "I can pay it now."

The sheriff brought him a blank customer's draft and he signed his name to a $100 check.

"Now, your honor," Johnson began again as if his examination of the witness had never been interrupted. "I don't know how to complete a possible bill of expectations unless we place before the jury the evidence we expect to prove. There are twenty reasons why we should try this case in the old-fashioned way. Let me ask the questions and let state's counsel object, but I want to ask them. I don't want, however, to be placed in the attitude of bankrupting myself paying fines."

Threatens Larger Fines.

"I'll just make the fines larger," Judge Swayne said. "Go ahead and make your bill of expectations when the time comes, if you have to."

"We don't expect to have to go down to Austin with a bill of expectations," Johnson remarked.

"Gentlemen," the judge said to the jury, "you didn't hear that. He was just talking to me."

When Cone Johnson was finally convinced he would not be allowed to ask the questions he wanted without devoting most of his time to writing checks or in a cell in the county jail, he insisted that the witness not be allowed to leave town until the trial is over. Judge Swayne indefinitely promised to allow Farwell to answer other questions.

Johnson's question that was interrupted was to have been followed by questions concerning the $50,000 or $60,000 the defense claims Captain Boyce raised for Al Boyce's elopement.

The state and prosecution objected because testimony concerning the alleged conspiracy would involve Henry Boyce, brother of the man who eloped with Sneed's wife.

W. H. Fuqua, the next witness, said that he was president of the First National Bank of Amarillo and was also in the cattle business. He had been president of the bank for sixteen to eighteen years, and had known Captain Boyce during all that time.

Knew Neal Sneed for eight or ten years and was associated with him in several business deals at the time of the killing of Captain Boyce.

He was asked whether or not he had received a letter from Sneed at the time Al Boyce Jr. and Mrs. Sneed were in Canada. He answered in the affirmative. The defense introduced the letter in evidence, but it was objected to on the ground that it was irrelevant and self-serving, and was written Sept. 23, 1911, and could have no proper connection with the case.

Objection Sustained.

Judge Swayne sustained the objection. This letter was admitted in the former trial. Cone Johnson, for the defense argued that the letter was admissible because it showed the state of mind of the defendant at the time and also his attitude toward the elopement. Attorney Cummings for the state said that it was admitted in the first trial on the statement of the defense that certain evidence would follow that did not follow.

Witness Fuqua testified that Sneed had made several trips during the time young Boyce and Mrs. Sneed were away. Captain Boyce was at Amarillo at the time, Fuqua testified that he told Sneed of the reports about his wife that he had heard, that Captain Boyce had made remarks about her that he would not have made about a prostitute. Sneed was arranging to go to Canada at the time.

Mr. Fuqua said that Captain Boyce had not made these remarks to him personally, but that they had come to him through Mr. Siade and others.

No More Babies Allowed.

Crying babies will not be permitted to interrupt Sneed's trial any more. Judge Swayne issued an order late Wednesday to eject an infant who had been several loud wails in the midst of the eloquence of a lawyer trying to convince the court he was right on a legal point.

"Take the babies out unless you can keep them quiet," Sheriff Rea shouted. "Yes, and after your infant who has come in to enter the courtroom," Judge Swayne added.

Searching Didn't Suit Her.

A murder trial where every spectator is searched for weapons was too much for a stylishly gowned woman who made short visit to the Seventh district courtroom Thursday.

She was unmolested as she passed the guards at the door, but she saw men raise their hands while deputy sheriffs went through their clothes.

She didn't even take a seat.

"Let me out of this place," she said, and once she was out in the corridor again she lost no time making for the elevator.

Court Addresses Women.

W. H. Atwell occupied the stand all afternoon in the Sneed case. Asked to state to statement of Captain Boyce while conferring with him before the shooting, Atwell declined to answer while the ladies were present.

Judge Swayne declined to order the room cleared of women, but suggested that any who did not wish to hear leave. None left. Atwell then answered. His testimony was a description of Sneed's condition when they dined together before the shooting and Sneed was given details regarding correspondence with Mrs. Sneed.

Body of Man Identified.

Dallas, Nov. 21.—The man who yesterday fell to his death in an elevator shaft here was identified last night as B. Tracy Warren, a machinist. He was about 50 years old. Why he fell down the shaft after opening an elevator door has not been established definitely. None of the employees of the furniture store where he fell knew Warren.

RICHEST WOMAN HAS BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Hetty Green, Worth $100,000,000, Celebrates Seventy-eighth Anniversary—Remains Active.

New York, Nov. 21.—Mrs. Hetty Green, the possessor of a fortune estimated at close to $100,000,000, and known as "the richest woman of the world," was 78 years old today.

The richest woman does not take much stock in birthday celebrations, and the fact that this was the anniversary of her birth caused no variance of her usual routine. The day was remembered, however, with tokens from her son, E. H. R. Green, her daughter, Sylvia, and the latter's husband, Matthew A. Wilks.

To all appearances Mrs. Green is still looking after her own affairs. She visits her banking offices daily and it is nothing out of the ordinary for her to attend several directors' meetings between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. In the meantime, "Ned," as she fondly calls her only son, continues to spend much of his time in Texas, where he has large railroad and other interests that require his personal attention.

At the age of seventy-seven Mrs. Green is handling the largest fortune possessed by any woman in the world. If the popular estimates are correct, her net worth exceeds by some $20,000,000 or more that of Mrs. Russell Sage, who is reckoned the second richest woman in the world.

The wealth of Mrs. Green is widely diversified. Her real estate holdings fairly freckle the face of the country. Her holdings in New York City amount to millions, while in Boston, where the foundation of her immense fortune was laid years ago by real estate investments, she still possesses entire streets of residence and business property. Her mortgagees comprise some of the safest of properties in a chain of cities extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Railroads, steamboats, traction roads, mines of gold, silver, copper and iron, telephones and telegraphs, all contribute to her income, and it is her proud boast that not one investment is a losing proposition.

Girl Is Overcome on Stand.

Miss Farley Re-enacts Tragic Scene Which Resulted in Her Arrest For Man's Murder.

Columbus, O., Nov. 21.—Both the defense and the state completed their evidence in the trial of Miss Cecilia Farley, the pretty state house stenographer, who is charged with shooting Alvin E. Zollinger, an advertising solicitor, in a city park last May, and the case is expected to go to the jury tomorrow.

After having been on the stand more than two days, Miss Farley today went from the stand crying and exhausted.

Prosecutor Turner today forced her to tell of her intimate relations with Jerome Quigley, the man whom she was to marry.

For the second time during the trial, Miss Farley went through the dramatic actions, demonstrating her story that Zollinger was "accidentally shot."

Prosecutor Turner acted the part of Zollinger instead of Miss Farley's attorney, Mr. Allen.

Under the guidance of the prosecuting attorney, who claimed it would have been impossible for Zollinger to have been shot in the manner claimed, the stenographer gave a more graphic description of the shooting than before. She held the gun seventeen inches from Turner's head, the same distance she claimed it was from Zollinger.

When Miss Farley again took the witness chair she broke down and had to be helped to the witness room to rest.

The prosecution in rebuttal introduced an expert, who declared powder marks could be seen from a gun twenty-six inches distant. The defense had introduced an expert who declared that powder marks could not be seen on flesh from a gun more than six inches away.

Student Volunteers Meet.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 21.—The annual convention of the student volunteer movement, representing a worldwide constituency of missionary students and workers, begins its sessions at Princeton University this evening and continues there over Sunday. Several hundred students and professors, representing scores of colleges and universities, have registered as delegates. Foreign missionaries from many parts of the world are on hand. Representatives from most of the mission boards in the United States and Canada are also here.

Over $15,000 Is Bonus Total.

the small merchant will benefit as well as will the large one, and the city will at once begin to realize the benefit of the hotel before it is constructed. This argument was a forcible one with the merchants on Austin avenue and on the streets running off Austin avenue. This wage money will be spent with the grocer, the banker, the dry goods man, the cigar and tobacco man—in fact, with every character of merchant in the city.

During the day Secretary E. F. Drake, of the Waco Business Men's Club, telegraphed to the meeting of the International Hotel Men's Association that Waco is in the market for a hotel and would give a bonus of $50,000 and that if the hotel men are interested, they are invited to investigate the proposition.

The luncheon was much enjoyed. It was served by a committee of ladies consisting of Mrs. E. F. Drake, Mrs. C. M. Cluser, Mrs. E. W. Marshall, Mrs. J. G. Smith, Mrs. Frank Trau, Mrs. J. R. Davis, Mrs. J. C. Lattimore, Mrs. Holloway Smith, Mrs. Minnie King and Miss Ellsworth. At the conclusion of the luncheon a rising vote of thanks was tendered the ladies.

The team captains will organize their forces again this morning at 9 o'clock and start out, and there will be another rally at noon at the Y. M. C. A. rooms for luncheon.

REQUESTS SWAMP CHAMP CLARK

Thousands Apply to Member of Congress for Positions.

Washington, Nov. 21.—Speaker Champ Clark is keeping four stenographers busy dictating replies to applicants for positions under the incoming administration. The speaker's clerks estimate that since his return recently to Washington he has answered several thousand such letters.

While the speaker has received more applications than anyone else, there has been no lack of letters to other members of congress.

"I have received 100 letters in the past four days and they are still coming," said Representative Henry of Texas, chairman of the house rules committee, today.

Fire Damages Church.

Lowell, Mass., Nov. 21.—While 160 worshippers were at mass flames were discovered in the French Catholic St. Jean Baptist church today. The congregation walked quietly out. Before the fire was extinguished one priest and twenty women were overcome. The church was damaged to the extent of $150,000.

For Southern Championship.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 21.—The Crick football team of Vanderbilt University and Alabama Polytechnic institute have finished their final practice work and are waiting the call to battle on the gridiron here tomorrow. Keen interest is displayed in the contest, as the result will virtually determine the Southern championship.

SIGNAL IN TIME; BE READY IN PLACE.

I.
The car whizzes by!
You are very angry with the motorman. But did you stand on the sidewalk looking more like a person with an idle moment than like a person who wanted to take a car? How was the motorman to know you wanted him to stop? And when he has gone by do you expect him to back up his car to take you on? Or even stop and wait for you? What would the other passengers say to all of these delays? What would you say if you were one of them?

II.
The car whizzes by!
It whizzes by your stop. You were on it. You wanted to get off! But how did the conductor know? You were reading the newspaper. Perhaps you were reading this advertisement. Perhaps you were lost in thought. You surely do not blame the conductor. If he stopped in the middle of the block for you, would he be giving the rest of the passengers fair play—good service? If you want him to do this sort of thing, first get the other passengers to agree to it. You are not travelling on a private car.

FATHER AND SON TO DIE IN CHAIR

ALLENS TO PAY PENALTY SOCIETY DEMANDS FOR MURDER.

THEIR CRIME THRILLED NATION

Lawlessness of Mountaineers Reigned Supreme Until Carroll County Tragedy Last March.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 21.—The execution of Floyd Allen and his son, Claude Swanson Allen, sentenced to die in the electric chair, marks the first blow of justice upon the notorious Allen clanmen whose lawlessness for years held the natives of the Virginia mountains in terror and culminated early this year in the shooting up of the Carroll county court when five persons lost their lives.

The news of the crime sent a thrill of horror throughout the nation and the shocked Virginia authorities moved expeditiously to bring the criminals to justice.

On the morning of March 14, Floyd Allen stood before the bar of the Carroll county court house at Hillsville, to receive sentence for his part in aiding the escape of another mountaineer from the custody of the sheriff. A crowd packed the little court room for one character of the prisoner was well known. Members of the Allen family were known to be in court and trouble was thought imminent.

Shooting Follows Sentence.

The jury having announced a verdict of guilty, Judge Thornton L. Massie sentenced the prisoners to one year at hard labor. With the last word of the sentence, a crash of fire arms broke from the spectators' benches. Floyd Allen, the prisoner, with a smoking revolver in his hand leaped from the prisoner's dock and joined the rush of the gang toward the door.

When the court room was cleared away the body of Judge Massie, riddled with bullets, was found lying over his desk. Commonwealth Attorney William M. Foster and Sheriff L. F. Webb lay dead on the floor; Augustus Fowler, a juror, and Elizabeth Ayres, a spectator, were bleeding from wounds which proved fatal the next day; and Dexter Good, clerk of the court, lay shot through the neck. Good was one of the principal witnesses for the state at the conviction of the prisoners.

When the court room was examined later it was found that more than 200 shots had been fired. Twenty-seven shots took effect upon those killed or wounded.

Pose in Pursuit.

An army of detectives and newspaper correspondents soon was scouring the muddy roads of the mountains in search for the prisoners. Floyd Allen, the cause of the shooting who had been wounded by Sheriff Webb in the court room was taken the day of the crime, together with his son Victor Allen and his nephew, Bird Marion.

Sidna Edwards, a nephew of the Allen brothers was captured in a hut in the mountains March 22. Edwards, who is lame, had eaten nothing for several days and was very weak when found. Claude Swanson Allen, another son of Floyd Allen, waited up to a posse in the mountains and surrendered himself on March 28. The next day Floyd Allen, youngest member of the gang was taken at his father's home.

Floyd Allen, charged specifically with the killing of Commonwealth Attorney Foster, was found guilty of first degree murder on May 17, and sentenced to death. Claude Allen, his son, was tried on a charge of killing Judge Massie, and convicted of murder in the second degree. The jury recommended a sentence of fifteen years in the penitentiary. The state demanded a new trial and a verdict of guilty.

In the first degree was returned on July 27 and he was sentenced to death. Floyd Allen pleaded guilty of murder in the second degree and on August 14 was sentenced to eighteen years in prison. Three days later Sidna Edwards pleaded guilty to a like charge and was given a sentence of fifteen years. Victor Allen was acquitted of a charge of having participated in the murders.

FUTURE CITIES ARE DISCUSSED

American Civic Association in Session at Baltimore Advises How to Build Model City.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 21.—"The building of the future city is not in our hands, but in the brains and hearts of America's children," said Walter D. Moody, managing director of the Chicago Plan Commission, at the conference on city planning held here today as a part of the sessions of the American Civic Association.

"It is not opposition which retards city betterment work in America," continued Mr. Moody, "but rather it is non-education and indifference. The solution of all the major problems of the American city lies in the education of our children to a realization of their responsibilities as the future owners of our cities. The regeneration of the American city must come from the efforts and the wills of an educated and civically enlightened citizenship."

"Chicago's efforts to educate children in city building," said Mr. Moody, "had resulted in turning out 36,000 city planning enthusiasts every year."

Real Estate Men Interested.

Real estate developing firms as an important factor in city planning, when they work upon proper lines, was the subject of an address by J. C. Nichols of Kansas City.

"Problems of city planning rest principally upon the street system," said Joseph W. Shirley, chief engineer of the Maryland Topographical Survey commission. "We should begin at our front doors. If our forefathers had only had the wisdom to provide a certain number of main arteries from the heart of the town to the outlying settlements, our problem for the readjustment of our street systems would have been a comparatively easy one."

He urged that American cities be "extravagantly liberal" in providing such main channels of traffic for the future.

FOREIGN BUSINESS INCREASES.

October Sets New High Mark in the Amount of Business.

Washington, Nov. 21.—In spite of the unsettling business conditions attending the month before a presidential election, October set a new high mark in the amount of foreign business done by the United States, both in imports and exports. A report just issued by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce shows that last month the imports were $17,995,830, the previous high water mark having been reached in April, 1912, when goods to the value of $162,571,189 were brought into the country.

The exports last month were $254,696,955, the previous high mark being credited to December, 1910, when the value of merchandise sent abroad reached $228,602,683.

Brain Proves To Be Whiskey.

Kansas City, Nov. 21.—Sixty barrels of whiskey and six barrels of beer, consigned to Tulsa, Okla., as a cargo of brain, were seized here today in the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad yards by officers of the department of justice. They say that fictitious names were used for both consignments and the largest shipment of liquor for Oklahoma ever intercepted here.

Madame Sherry.

Whoever started the story that "Madame Sherry" was a show with just one number in it made a mistake. It would be in bad shape now if that were the case, for "Every Little Movement," with all its fluent melody and poetry, has been very nearly killed by mal-treatment in the cafe and in the flat next door. But when the piece is shown at the Auditorium Monday night it will prove to have just about as many enjoyable numbers as there are lines on the musical program. Both to dancing and music, it is far better than the average musical show.

The Girl from Tokio.

"The Girl from Tokio," a bright successful farce, adapted from the German, will be seen at the Auditorium Tuesday matinee and night. As a mirth provoking laugh producer, this charming bit of comedy, it is said, has few if any competitors; filled for all of three interesting acts with ludicrous situations, comical complications and humorous explanations it keeps the audience in continual laughter and contented amusement. While the fun is plentiful the laughter spontaneous and continuous, the farce is clean, healthy and devoid of any vulgarity, insinuations or suggestiveness; a delightful relief from many so-called successes of recent seasons.

The Spring Maid.

When the "Spring Maid" which is to be at the Auditorium for Thanksgiving day, opened in Fort Worth this week, Gordon K. Shearer, critic for the Fort Worth Star-Telegram said: "Delightful and charming Mizzi Hajos scattered another supply of real enjoyment about Fort Worth Tuesday night that may last until she appears again with 'The Spring Maid' for it would be a pity ever to take her from the delightful setting into which she fits so perfectly."

"Day Dreams and Two Little Love Reels" were started on another whirling and humming course that made every office seem a miniature of the opera house all day. Some of the more expert car musicians were even trying their luck on "How I Love a Pretty Face."

"That the audience at the opera house last night liked a pretty face was shown every time Mizzi Hajos appeared. If the men in the house would make a strictly honest confession, every one, except those engaged and not yet married, would say they loved her just a little bit, anyhow. Last year nobody could get by enjoying 'Day Dreams' and 'Two Little Love Reels' but this year they enjoyed them thoroughly and passed on to enthusiasm at some of the other song numbers which are not hits merely because they have to stack up against such numbers as 'Day Dreams'."

There is a new Prince Aladar but he is equally big of chest and slender of back and good to look upon and seems to make quite as great a hit with the spring maids.

The men are all as slender and there is a real graceful chorus with slender dancing equipment that flashes in green hose at every possible provocation. But above and most important of all the same Mizzi Hajos heads the company.

"The Spring Maid" is one of the few musical comedies, which, like "The Chocolate Soldier" and "Madame Sherry" is better for having been seen and heard before. It is one of this style of performances that demonstrates the need for a new English word to meet the situation. Musical comedy is both seen and heard.

"A new word is needed to express this double exercise of the senses. When it is found 'The Spring Maid' can be put down as one of the most delightful productions to be enjoyed in the double way."

RACE MEET PROSPECTS GOOD

Sixty Horses at Fort Worth—Waco Motorists Get Request to Enter Motor Events.

Fort Worth, Nov. 21.—Over sixty horses are now here for the Fall Race Meet.

Twenty additional running horses have arrived and forty entries are listed for the harness events. These with the six that arrived in the first consignment from Hot Springs raise the total to sixty-six.

The racing starting gates that are to be used in the meet have also arrived and are being installed. These are something new here and have attracted much attention. By their use a false start is impossible and in addition to getting a fair start the delays of calling back for fresh starts are avoided.

On inquiring from Waco following publication of the news of the proposed race meet, Chairman A. P. Mitchell of the motor department went there Wednesday to confer with car owners who desire to enter the motor events. A number of fast cars are now in Waco and will be brought to the Fort Worth meet from there.

C. E. Verschole of Dallas, North Texas referee for the Automobile Association of America, inspected the track yesterday and gave his approval to its use subject to a few minor improvements that are now being made.

SPEAKER GETS AUTO.

Texas Baseball Men Departs for Hubbard City at Once.

Dallas, Nov. 21.—Tris Speaker of the Boston Americans received an automobile presented to him as the most valuable player in the league. Five minutes after it was presented to him Speaker was in it on a 100-mile drive to his winter home at Hubbard City. There was no ceremony about the presentation.

Missouri Choice Over Kansas. Lawrence, Kans., Nov. 21.—With both teams reported in good condition interest throughout Kansas and Missouri centers on tomorrow's football game between the Kansas and Missouri Universities. The game is to be played here and the city is already filling with the followers of both teams. Nearly 15,000 tickets for the game have been sold. Betting slightly favors the Missourians, chiefly because of the splendid showing the Tigers have made this season.

MRS. ORNER AGAIN FACES TRIAL

Woman Gets Third Hearing For Child Poisoning.

El Paso, Nov. 21.—Mrs. Agnes Orner, indicted here for murder of her child by poisoning, will face a jury for the third time on that charge at Pecos, Texas, Nov. 25. Subpoenas for the El Paso witnesses in the case are in the sheriff's hands.

Mrs. Orner was first tried on the indictment in the Thirty-fourth district court and sentenced to life imprisonment. Because the verdict did not specify the degree of murder of which she was found guilty, the court of criminal appeals reversed the case. Her second trial was at Marfa, where the jury was unable to agree.

Bay, 19, Shoots Step-mother.

Hammond, Ind., Nov. 21.—Frank Cravens, aged 19, during a quarrel, shot his step-mother, Mrs. Lincoln Cravens, here today and then fired a bullet into his own body. Both are expected to die. Lincoln Cravens, the head of the family, is widely known as a lawyer.

Rates on Bakery Products Taken Up.

Washington, Nov. 21.—On its own initiative, the interstate commerce commission today ordered an investigation into the rates, classification and regulations of express companies respecting the transportation of bread, yeast and bakery products. Under existing express rates these products enjoy a special rate at an average of 25 per cent lower than the general merchandise express rate. In the rate schedule proposed by the commission no special rates for such commodities were made. The application of the flat rate of the commission would increase the cost of the express transportation of bread and like commodities. Twenty-seven express companies are made parties to the investigation. The time and place of the public inquiry will be announced later.

College Writers to Hear Waterson. Hanover, Ind., Nov. 21.—The annual conference of the Indiana Intercollegiate Press association will begin at Hanover College today with members in attendance from the leading colleges of the state. The meeting will continue over tomorrow and will conclude with a banquet at which Henry Waterson of Louisville is to be the principal speaker.

PRESCOTT IS FOR PENSION SYSTEM

BELIEVES MEN WHO SERVE LONG TIME IN FIRE DEPARTMENT DESERVE IT.

HAS NO SELFISH INTEREST

Does Not Want to Retire, But He Feels That Something Is Due Him.

For thirty-seven years Chief A. M. Prescott has been connected with the Waco fire department. For twenty-seven years he has been the fire chief of Waco and the only pay chief the city has ever had. He has been called the "father of the Waco fire department," and his long years of service have well won him the distinction. And Chief Prescott favors a pension for firemen in the service twenty-five years, and for those disabled in the service.

He is hale and hearty at the age of 45 years, and it would take a score of book agents the rest of their natural lives to talk Chief Prescott into the notion of retiring and turning over the reins of the efficient fire department he has built up to another. No, old "Pres" is still in the harness and will be so long as he is able to navigate, so there is no personal benefit expected from his advocacy of the pension provision in the proposed new city charter.

Chief Prescott, however, has a feeling for the men in his employ—the men who have toiled faithfully for many years to assist him in giving to Waco the equal of any fire department in the state and the peer of many. He would like to see written in the new charter some provision to take care of the boys when they no longer are useful to the department. He is in hearty accord with the suggestion that pensioned firemen be placed on half pay.

At the present time Chief Prescott has no men who have been with the department twenty-five years. John Miller completed his twenty-second year in September and Ab Chestnut will have been on the payroll twenty years April 26. Both of these men are engineers and work at the central station. However, Chestnut will be transferred to station No. 8 at Fifteenth and Herring avenue when it is completed.

Station No. 3—Waco had one station when Chief Prescott was made chief, and four men on the payroll besides himself. These were Bob Yates, Will Dugger, Sam Jackson and Tom Wilson. None of the famous five remain save the chief.

But, getting back to the pension provision, Chief Prescott pointed out the predicament he himself would be in in the event of a serious fire in which would incapacitate him for the remainder of his life—left dependent upon his family—however, he has a comfortable home and could take care of himself, but the good feeling and cooperation of our entire people, who have all worked willingly and faithfully to make the Cotton Palace exposition the grand success that it was.

Chief Prescott, in the last statement, came very near exposing the secret of why some men stay in the fire department over a score of years. It is because they like to fight fire, and the noise created in going swiftly through the streets. He likes to trap the fire and whip them out with the aid of modern apparatus.

Of the sixty-four men on the payroll many of them have been with the fire department a number of years. It is argued that to write a pension provision in the new charter would encourage the present firemen to remain in the service, and it is admitted that the success of the Waco department is due to experienced men in charge. Chief Prescott has virtually built the department, and he has a number of men who can be trusted to do the right thing in an emergency.

To retain the efficiency of the department, it is essential that experienced men be kept in the service, and the city can do so by providing for them after they are no longer useful in the service that made them useful.

Music Lovers.

The last obstacle to obtaining a musical education has been removed. Music is now taught successfully by mail. The Columbia Conservatory of Music, located at Dallas, guarantees to teach piano, organ, violin and guitar in a specified time to the most difficult students, or refund you the money. The lessons are written by experts sent for by mail and your work is carefully connected by men with years of experience. This method of instruction is conceded to be superior to personal instructions and its cost is a trifle in comparison. The Columbia Conservatory of Music is now running a series of advertisements in the Waco Morning News and all who are interested should read them very carefully.

COTTON PALACE MUST BE BIGGER

SO SAY ALL WHO HAVE DISCUSSED THE TWO WEEKS' BUSINESS.

HAS NO SELFISH INTEREST

Willing to Buy More Stock to Enlarge Exposition—President Hoffman's Letter of Thanks.

For several days the officers of the Cotton Palace Association have been gathering up the scattered ends of many threads and are getting everything in shape for the annual meeting of the board of directors soon to be held.

President Hoffman is appreciative of the work which was done by all those who assisted in making the exhibition a success, and during the last few days he has written personal letters to men and women who helped him to carry on the details of the various phases of the big exposition, thanking them.

There is no doubt the sentiment of the people is in favor of a larger and more extensive Cotton Palace. A visit to any of the stores of the city, the barber shops, the eating houses and the rooming places, brings out the information that the entire commercial side of Waco found good business during the two weeks of the exposition. Gentlemen who have been out soliciting for the hotel bonus during the last few days have met the usual verdict wherever they have gone, and every suggestion is that more stock be sold for the Cotton Palace, and that it be expended in improving the institution and enlarging it. This matter will be taken up by the board of directors at the next meeting.

Yesterday president Hoffman issued the following:

Mr. Hoffman's Letter.

President W. H. Hoffman of the Texas Cotton Palace Association, issued the following:

Waco, Texas, November 19, 1912.

To the Public: Now that the 1912 Cotton Palace is over and in view of the fact that the "SHOW" was a delightful success, it behooves me as president of the Texas Cotton Palace Association, to publicly acknowledge my sincere appreciation and thanks to the directors of the association, to Secretary S. N. Mayfield, to the lady managers and their assistants, to all exhibitors and concessionaires, to the city and county officers, the city police and firemen, to every employee, to the ladies in charge of the emergency hospital and rest rooms, to the railroads and the street car company and last, but not least, to the PRESS and the PUBLIC, to our neighbors and visitors for their most hearty support and co-operation in making our show the best ever. Never before have our people worked together better, never before has the spirit of happiness and pleasure reigned supreme for such a long period and amongst such a large bunch of people.

That the show was a success financially and from every standpoint is due solely to the good feeling and cooperation of our entire people, who have all worked willingly and faithfully to make the Cotton Palace exposition the grand success that it was.

As president of the Texas Cotton Palace Association, I will say that I enjoyed every moment of the time and I feel proud of the new friends and acquaintances which I made, and I feel sure that our efforts were not in vain, but that they were appreciated by all.

In publicly expressing my thanks and appreciation, I am voicing the sentiment of the entire board of the Texas Cotton Palace directors. Let us live the Cotton Palace. Success and prosperity to her people.

W. H. HOFFMANN,

President of the Cotton Palace.

Deaths and Burials

Fletcher Hood.

Fletcher Hood, aged 62 years, died at the home of W. H. Turner, a brother-in-law, 804 Elm street, East Waco, at 5:10 o'clock yesterday, following a prolonged illness. His only brother, H. R. Hood of Delcher, La., was present at the time of his death. Funeral services will be held from the house at 3 o'clock today. The pallbearers are R. G. Wright, S. H. Chilton, J. S. Harrison, S. H. Smith, George Lyons and Charles Shelton.

EDUCATION BOARD HAS A MEETING

THE AFFAIRS OF BAPTIST CORRELATED SCHOOL SYSTEM GENERALLY DISCUSSED.

TO HELP BAYLOR COLLEGE

Campaign to Raise $50,000 For Emergency Needs, However, Will Be First Work of the Year.

Overshadowing all else before the body, a campaign was launched at the session of the State Baptist Education Board in the First Baptist church yesterday for the raising of $50,000 to be used in clearing the board of its present indebtedness and in the enlargement of the work of the correlated school system of the Baptist general convention of Texas.

That the credit of the board may remain intact, that the future of the twelve schools and colleges under its jurisdiction may go steadily forward rather than halt on the brink of a chasm of financial difficulties, and that certain improvements and enlargements may be forthcoming, were the specific arguments offered at the meeting yesterday as to why the $50,000 should be raised by the church in Texas at once.

"We have got to get it."

"We will get it."

These were the twin sentences upon every lip at the sessions held yesterday. Much of the morning was devoted to prayer and at night the members of the board again took the matter to God for wisdom with which to solve the problems before them.

By personal letter, circular and through each of the associations, most of which are within a single county, the work will be carried forward immediately, and within thirty days it is expected that the success of the undertaking will be assured. All other matters involving the appropriation of money for improvements of any of the schools in the correlated system were sidetracked yesterday in completion of the campaign, which will be inaugurated at once.

The movement had its start in the convention at Fort Worth, at which a call was sent out to the churches to assist the education board.

To Raise Money for Baylor.

One of the principal matters before the board was the launching of a campaign to raise $50,000 for Baylor College, the work to begin after the $50,000 has been safely secured by the board.

The resolution in which this was incorporated read as follows: "We recommend that the Education Board give the trustees of Baylor College the authority to mortgage sufficient property to take care of its immediate necessities, not to exceed $20,000, for sums spent on permanent improvements, this to be done by the consent of this board according to its established policy."

"We recommend that one of the field men of the board be placed at the disposal of the college during its campaign in the Salado association, whenever needed in other places, and that our secretary give as much time to this campaign as he deems wise."

"We recommend that a campaign be commenced immediately after the present emergency campaign has been concluded, and in harmony with all other campaigns, for $50,000 in cash and notes payable in one, two and three years, the details of this campaign to be worked out by the board and the college jointly. The said fund to be raised by the sale of property and the college for the purpose of paying off all indebtedness, including indebtedness to said board, and for greatly needed buildings and equipment."

"We recommend that these notes be made payable to the Education Board for Baylor College, and that all receipts and disbursements of this fund pass through this board."

(Signed) J. L. GROSS,

(And Committee.)

To Benefit Junior College.

Considerable discussion resulted at the night session of the board relative to standing of junior colleges and a committee headed by President S. C. Brooks, of Baylor, was appointed to secure legislation looking toward the standardization of these institutions.

That the chair of Bible study in a college in the correlated system of schools should not be looked upon as unprofitable in the eyes of students to a school, but should be regarded upon exactly the same footing as the chair of mathematics or any other study, was brought forcibly before the board by Prof. Tidwell, whose sentiments were backed by recent Brooks of Baylor, and Secretary Barton. The discussion was brought up when the following recommendation of this resolution by the committee was made:

"Resolved, that each school be required to provide for the salaries of their chairs and Bible out of the regular income of the school, as are the chairs of the other departments, or provide for it in a purely private way. That after this the Education Board appropriate out of the general fund the amount needed to aid young preachers in each school according to their respective needs, and that the Seminary be asked to co-operate with us in this plan."

That no appeals be made for college homes, either in equipment or in student aid, except as part of the general campaign for the particular school, or else in a purely private way. That this board draw no attention with the collection of pledges already made.

"We recommend a conference of the faculties of the correlated schools in relation to what shall be taught in the Bible departments of these institutions."

The board will re-convene in the First Baptist church at 8:30 o'clock this morning and the business before it will be concluded. It is thought, within two hours. It is possible that an adjourned session of the body will be held in Waco in January, but this has not yet been definitely decided upon.

NEW ADDITION OPENS

CALLAHAN BUYS PROPERTY IN EAST WACO, LYING ALONG-SIDE KATY TRACKS.

Is To Be Named Industrial Heights and Will Be Marketed as City Lots—Pippin Bros. Building.

The Callahan Development Co. has just purchased from W. J. Neale, through the agency of D. E. Hirschfield, a strip of acreage property lying south of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas track on the east side of the river and extending east from a point near Peach street for a distance of five or six blocks. The deal involves between $20,000 and $40,000.

This property formerly belonged to the late Henry C. Scott, when he was president of the Citizens' Railway Company. Mr. Neale acquired it from the Scott heirs. The Callahan Development Company has had the property cut up into lots and blocks and will put it on the market at once. It is to be called "Industrial Heights," the name being selected because it lies so close to all the industrial plants that are established on the east side of the river and those who are to follow the establishment of the Katy terminals. The interurban will pass within five blocks of the property, and being within the city limits, it will have the facilities that are provided by municipal government.

BUILDING NEAR THE BRIDGE.

Pippin Bros. Putting Up a Big Barn on Washington.

With the prospect bright for street car service to East Waco, Washington street, near the river front, is becoming valuable property and much improvement is going on. A two-story brick building, 130x22 feet, is under construction between First and Second streets on Washington street, and it is the intention of D. Pippin and brother, J. L. Pippin, to add on the rear a horse and mule barn to extend 36 feet deep.

The Pippin brothers will spend in the neighborhood of $40,000 on the improvements. The horse and mule barn will be built of corrugated iron and absolutely fire proof. They have not decided what the brick building on the front will be used for. Actual construction work has already begun, and the brick building will be rushed to completion. The horse and mule barn will be added before spring.

It is stated that the brick building may be used for a large general merchandise store. D. Pippin is associated with S. H. Clinton on Elm street in East Waco, in a general merchandise business. J. D. Pippin is a stockman, known throughout Central Texas.

WILL DISCUSS EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

Rabbi Warsaw Will Talk of Woman and the Ballot Tonight.

Rabbi I. Warsaw will discuss the question of equal suffrage at the Temple this evening at 8 o'clock.

He has framed a question, as follows: "Will the vote of women tend to elevate government questions to a higher moral altitude, or will it weaken the asset and noble influence of her character?"

Dr. Warsaw wants those holding both views of the subject to hear him. He considers it one of the vital questions of the day, and that while it is not a modern question, it is being brought forward now as a proposed change in government affairs.

There will be an organ prelude by Professor Panum, with responses by the Temple Quartette and a solo by Mrs. Wood.

IS A MODEL FIRE STATION

So Says Chief Prescott of No. 8, at Fifteenth and Herring Avenue.

"A model fire station" is the name Fire Chief Prescott has applied to the little station under construction at Fifteenth street and Herring avenue, and Chief Prescott ought to know something about a fire station. Waco has built six substations under his regime, and the model station is No. 8, the central fire hall being No. 1.

The station will be completed next month and ready for occupancy. Its Chestnut will be made captain. It leaves the central fire hall with engine No. 1. Hose wagon No. 1 will also be stationed at the new hall.

The building proper is a two-story brick, located on a lot 100x150 feet. The street will be paved around the station and the space between the hall and the street will be covered with cement. Seven additional men will go to work for the fire department when the station is completed.

With the completion of the station a section of the city, in which are located many valuable residences, will be given better fire protection.

Fire Commissioner John F. Wright is proud of the new station and of the improvements which have been made in the old buildings. He has given this work personal attention.

TO TEST AUTO ENGINE.

If Weather Permits, the Fire Apparatus Will Be Tried Today.

Weather permitting, the final test of the automobile combination hose and engine will be made at Thirtieth and Clay streets at 4 o'clock this afternoon before the city finally accepts the apparatus. The test was scheduled for yesterday, but postponed on account of the weather. Representatives of the Webb Motor Car Company are here to give the test.

The new apparatus was shipped direct from Denver to Waco, where it was used for demonstration purposes during the Fire Chiefs' convention in August. It was stationed at the Cotton Palace during the exposition and will be permanently located at the central fire station.

JUST CRACKED DOWN AND FIRED

Negro Wounds Another in the Wrist in an Affray in East Waco.

"I just cracked down and fired," said Mingo Patello, negro who shot John Pulpis through the wrist with a large calibre revolver yesterday morning.

The shooting occurred at the home of Patello at 619 Mann street, East Waco. Pulpis is said to have had a butcher knife in his hand at the time and had told Patello that he came to settle matters. The affray was the culmination of a quarrel over a woman, who is now Patello's wife. She was formerly the wife of Pulpis until he was sentenced to serve time in the state penitentiary for an assault on a white man named Ribbs about three years ago.

When Pulpis arrived in Waco following his discharge about a month ago he discovered that his wife had
